CHEERS NOT ALL FLYERS WILL GET FOR WORLD TRIP

President Wires Them He Will Seek Authority to Give Them "Practical Recognition" of Services.

CONGRESS WILL FIX THE REWARD

Seattle Gives Globe Girdlers
Big Reception on Official Finish of Their Long Voyage.

By the Associated Press.
SEATTLE, Wash., Sept. 29.—Six United States Army aviators who completed a flight around the world with their arrival here yesterday from Eugene, Ore., were ready today to receive the welcome which has been arranged by an appreciative citizenry.

The flyers completed their journey back to Seattle in five months and 22 days, the 27,534 mile trip made in 181 flying hours.
Lieut. Lowell H. Smith, commander of the flight, officially reported completion of the journey to Major-Gen. Mason M. Patrick, at Washington, D. C., by telephone last night. He was informed by Gen. Patrick that future duties and movements of the six aviators will be announced tomorrow.

At a public luncheon today the flyers and their mechanics will make talks describing their world famous trip. In addition to the luncheon, the aviators will participate in the dedication of a monument at Sand Point commemorating man's first circumnavigation of the globe by air. The lieutenants are scheduled to speak briefly.

Congress to Decide Reward.
When Lieut. Smith finished a luncheon aboard a private yacht yesterday en route to Madison and Volunteer parks for a formal ceremony and reception, he expressed that attitude that "all the worries of taking care of their machines were over" and that the only thing left which he said that they could not avoid was the appearance of himself and his comrades before the public.

A telegram received last night from President Coolidge informed the men that the President intended, on the convening of Congress, to recommend that authority be granted to reward the squadron by promotion and other appropriate action, in order that their distinguished services may have a practical recognition from your country.

At present it is not known how long the aviators are to remain in Seattle or whether the air cruisers Boston II, Chicago and New Orleans are to be taken back by the original pilots to the cities they were christened after.

Seattle's reception to the epoch-making aviators was among the best of any city along the route in the United States. Ten thousand persons witnessed the arrival of the three planes; 500 more cheered as they stepped off a private yacht at Madison Park and transferred to automobiles, and thousands of others sounded automobile horns and sent up lusty greetings as the aviators progressed through the automobile-lined streets to Volunteer Park, where 50,000 persons listened to short talks from the men.

Platinum and gold rings commemorating bloodstains presented to each of the aviators. The men made short talks accepting the gifts.

"We would not undertake another world flight for a million dollars unless ordered to do so, now that it is over," Lieut. Smith told newspapermen.

"Everyone of the squadron feels relieved. All of our big worries are over. Tonight will be the first one in 175 days that we won't have to work on the planes. We made 76 flights and actually flew on 66 days, the difference being due to doubling up some of the stops.

"When we left Seattle we knew the world trip was tough. We all told it was tough and it was tough.
Of course, there were some places more dangerous than others, but by sticking to it, we managed to complete the first aerial circuit of the globe."

Important From International Aspect, Secretary Hughes Says.
By the Associated Press.
WASHINGTON, Sept. 29.—The round-the-world flight of the army aviators has accomplished important results of an international aspect, in the opinion of Secretary Hughes.

"In the establishment of friendly contacts in the various countries visited," he said, in a letter to Secretary Weeks, "the strength of international union."

CLEAR UP AN UNSOLVED MURDER

PATROLMAN MICHAEL

FORMER HELEN GOULD NETTLED AS WITNESS

Not on Stand to Sit in Judgment on Brother, Frank,
She Tells Lawyer.

By the Associated Press.
NEW YORK, Sept. 29.—Mrs.
Finley J. Shepard, the former Helen Gould, became nettled during her cross-examination today by William Wallace, attorney for the late George J. Gould, in the referee's hearing in the suit for an accounting of the $50,000,000 estate of the late Jay Gould.

"I am not here to sit in judgment on my brother Frank's connection with the Virginia Railway Co.," Mrs. Shepard replied when questioned as to Frank Gould's association with that concern and her own share in its purchase and management.

"I think the Virginia company does not come under this question of accounting at all," she added.
"They are not related in any way whatever."

"I think it would be very nice of you to ask my brother what he did," Mrs. Shepard said, when Wallace asked whether Frank kept informed about the line while he was in Europe.

Not a Business Woman.
When the attorney asked whether she had sufficient business ability to be active in the company, the witness answered:
"I do not think I am a business woman at all. It would be very lovely if I were. It would have pleased my father very much, but I am afraid I was not cut out that way."

Wallace had sought to show that Mrs. Shepard was more active in the affairs of the estate and more capable in handling her own investments than she had indicated.
He asked whether she had relied upon her own judgment in business matters outside of the estate during the 23 years since her father's death.

Mrs. Shepard explained that she was advised often by friends, but admitted that she had not employed a lawyer for thus purpose.

Has Large Realty Holdings.
Wallace asserted that during that time Mrs. Shepard's income was about $500,000 a year.

"I have a large amount of property, but I can't tell exactly how much," she admitted.

Mrs. Shepard explained that she assisted her brother in the management of the Virginia Railway, which became a paying investment several years after its purchase in 1908.

POLICEMAN AFTER TWO YEARS SOLVES MURDER ON BEAT Killing of John Frai in His Saloon in October, 1922, Cleared Up by Patrolman Quinlisk.

ARREST MADE AND CONFESSION OBTAINED

Liborio Miceli Admits He Shot Saloon Man in Row
Over the Latter's Son
"Going Bad."

John Frai was slain in his soft drink bar at 2250 Washington avenue almost two years ago and after the usual investigation it was laid away among the unsolved murder mysteries—by all except Patrolman Michael Quinlisk, one of the policemen on the beat at the time of the murder.

Yesterday morning Patrolman Quinlisk, walking another beat, to which he had been transferred, spotted a man for whom he had been looking for two years, in the belief he had information about the Frai murder. He took the man into custody, and a few hours later the prisoner, Liborio Miceli, 321 Eim street, after questioning in the Homicide Bureau, admitted he was the slayer of Frai.

At the time of the murder Quin-lisk, with other policemen and detectives, gathered information which led them to believe that Miceli, who also was known as Leo Mitchell, had had bootlegging deals with Frai and another man. The other man established an alibi. Miceli could not be found at the time.

Reports on Case Pigeonholed.
Shortly afterward Frai's son, John Frai Jr., was arrested, charged with carrying concealed weapons. He asserted he had been in Chicago looking for two men he suspected of slaying his father, one of whom was Miceli. The police reports, urging that Mitchell be determined for investigation if found, were pigeonholed at police headquarters and were forgotten when Mitchell twice was arrested in liquor violation investigations subsequent to the murder.

But Patrolman Quinlisk, who knew Mitchell by sight, was ever on the lookout for him, and sighted him yesterday for the first time since the murder on Oct. 24, 1922.

"Sure Shot Frai," Miceli told a Post-Dispatch reporter today.
"If I hadn't got him he would have got me. I had heard he was sore at me for getting his son into bad company and making a bum out of him and several people had told me the old man had hired two fellows to bump me off."

"I went to his saloon on the night of the shooting about 9:30 o'clock and had a couple of drinks. Finally I asked Frai if he had someone out for me. He didn't answer and I told him that I had nothing to do with young John going bad."

Why do you have someone else get me, anyhow? I asked him. "Why don't you kill me yourself?"

Tells of Killing Frai.
"He made no answer and I finished my drink. As I set my glass on the bar he began to stoop. I knew he had a revolver under the bar and I fired three shots. He fell behind the bar and I walked out. I spent the night at a hotel and returned home next morning."

Miceli said he had remained in the city most of the time since the murder, and since last February he has worked as a bartender.

Another Killing in Same Bar.
Almost a year after the murder of Frai there was another killing in the same bar. Jack de Luca, who bought the bar from the Frai estate, was shot and killed Sept.
4, 1923, in the saloon and the murder, like Frai's, was charged up to a bootlegging quarrel. The identity of de Luca's slayer never was learned.

BOSTON, Sept. 29.—Miss Eva Morrison, N. S., at times a stenogmusic student, today was acknowledged the winner of strength by the long-distance swimming operations of this city. In waters too cold for more than one of several men who had entered to meet her, she swam yesterday for seven hours in an attempt to reach Boston Light.

left the water a mile out, saying it was too cold for him. Miss Morrison continued to within a mile and a half of the light, eating chocolates fed her from a rowboat, when she was taken from the water because the tide had set against her.

POLICE SEIZE LARGE STILL IN RAID DOWNTOWN

Device With Capacity of About 300 Gallons of
216 South Main.

ABOUT 12,000 GALLONS OF MASH THERE ALSO

Building Ostensibly Occupied as Feed Store—No One on Premises When Search Is Made.

A triple condensing still of a daily capacity of about 300 gallons of whisky, one of the largest found in St. Louis since prohibition, was seized in the downtown district at 2 a. m. today when police raided a three-story building at 216 South Main street, ostensibly occupied as a feed store by the Western Brokerage Co.

Two heavy wooden vats containing from 12,000 to 15,000 gallons of mash, another empty vat and a fourth in process of construction also were found.

The building and contents were deserted when Sgt. Flanagan and several other officers entered.
Search is being made for the persons who comprised the brokerage concern. The still and its accessories are being destroyed.

Watched for Several Days.
Operations in the building fell under suspicion several days ago when the police and neighbors noted that a large quantity of lumber and numerous sacks of grain were being carried into the place both day and night. Windows both in front and rear were painted and the doors kept locked. The police kept watch and early this morning gained entry through a window after demolishing the door.

The still, which had been enclosed tightly by a partition to prevent odors from escaping, was found in the second of three rooms on the first floor. Its col-led to a condenser on the second floor and another pipe connected with a mash tank on the third. This tank apparently was fed by a pump in the cellar vats in the back room on the first floor.

There were three of these with a capacity of 10,000 gallons each and two were partly filled with rye mash.
Fourth was on its way to completion. Numbers on its various parts indicated it had been constructed elsewhere and was being reassembled.

Search of the front room disclosed several sacks of cracked corn and sugar, several sacks of excelsior in which liquor containers might be packed, a number of five-gallon cans and paper cal-cations designed to enclose them.

A room on the third floor appeared to have been outfitted for an office. It contained a desk, an empty safe and stationary bearing the name of the Western Brokerage Co.

YOUNG WOMAN GENIUS FOUND BY PROFESSORS IN FACTORY

Boston Associated Industries Plan Is to Give Her Educational Chance She Craves.

By the Associated Press.
BOSTON, Sept. 29.—A young woman declared by a committee of industrial leaders and Harvard professors to be a genius whose light was being hidden under the routine of school teaching and factory work, was identified today as Miss Muriel Black, employed temporarily by the Plymouth Cordage Co. in Lynn.

Those who saw her after a report of the committee of the Associated Industries became public admitted "extremely attractive" to its summary of qualities of the 21-year-old girl—"poise, outlook, a fine physique, excellent practical judgment and great ambition."

Miss Black, in discussing the committee has indicated that the education will be forthcoming as a result of its findings and the confirmation by the Harvard professors.

The committee was organized by the Associated Industries to search for youthful genius in the factories of New England and 16 months was given to the work.

DR. HIBBEN, REPUBLICAN, COMES OUT FOR DAVIS

G. O. P. Faithless to World Peace, Says One of "Eminent 31" Who in 1920
Made Plea for Harding.

WILL SUPPORT DAVIS IN INTEREST OF PEACE

DR. JOHN GRIER HIBBEN.

By the Associated Press.
WASHINGTON, Sept. 29.—Dr.
John Grier Hibben, president of Princeton University, and one of the "31 eminent Republicans" who in 1920 urged the public to support Harding to insure participation in the peace councils of the world, has authorized the Democratic National Committee to announce that he would vote for John W. Davis because of Republican faithless-ness on the issue of world peace.

Dr. Hibben has invited Davis to speak at Princeton during the campaign. Dr. Hibben is a lifelong Republican, whose action is in revolution against the broken pledges of his party on foreign policy. He was one of the co-signers of the famous 1920 appeal with Secretaries Hughes and Hoover.

The Democratic committee issued a recent address in which Dr. Hib-ben's reasons for turning to Davis were indicated. "You will remember," said Dr. Hibben, "these words which were on everyone's lips: 'It was a war to end war.' We all felt at that time that the victory would mean the assured peace of the world. This objective has not been realized, and if in 1917 we were honest in our purposes, our hopes and expectations, we should not indulge in the complacent satisfaction which seems to characterize the Americans today, but he deeply concerned for the state of the world, both of present and of the future."

Referring to the Republican argument, that the league is a dead issue, Dr. Hibben added: "I do not believe that any issue has been finally settled in this country, or that any cause can be regarded as a lost cause, which temporarily has been decided by the prejudices of partisan following and has never had a chance at the bar of reason."

After a lengthy private discussion this morning among important delegates with a view to finding a solution of the difficult situation,
the declaration of the Japanese delegates when the Subcommittee on arbitration reassembled this afternoon indicated a noticeable stiffening in their attitude.

Herculean efforts on the part of all of the leading delegates to save the situation continued this afternoon, many of them expressing the conviction that a saving formula would be found by the committee of jurists to whom they plan to refer the problem.

DRIVER ESCAPES AFTER FATALLY INJURING LABORER

Halts Machine and Gets Out

Scene of Accident.

Police today are seeking the driver of "a large, dark, touring model" automobile, who struck and killed a pedestrian at Manchester and Knox avenues, at 10:15 o'clock last night, halted and got out of his car to look at his victim, and then sped up and feloniously fled the scene.

A taxicab driver and his fare, the Rev. Patrick Melican of 7283 Mottler avenue, drew up to the scene a moment later in time to see the car vanish, but were unable to obtain the license number. They summoned police and an ambulance, which took the injured man to city hospital, where he was found to have suffered a fractured skull, fractured pelvis and six fractured ribs. He died without regaining consciousness at 11:10 p. m.

BOSTON, Sept. 29.—A trust fund of $2,000,000 for disabled veterans of the World War and for wives, mothers and other dependents is created by the will of "Lotta" Crabtree, the actress, who died here last Thursday, which was filed for probate today. Additional bequests aggregating close to $2,000,000 actress to charities to almost $4-

The trust fund for veterans and their dependents will be administered by three trustees, Gen. Clarence R. Edwards, U. S. A., retired; Judge William C. Waite of the Supreme Court and William A. Morse

BERGER, Foe OF LA FOLLETTE 25 YEARS, TELLS WHY HE CHANGED

Says Senator Is No Hero But Has Best Record of Any Politician in Fighting Corruption.

By the Associated Press.
CHICAGO, Sept. 29.—Why Victor Berger, after opposing Robert M. La Follette for 25 years, is now supporting the independent candidate, was explained last night here in an address by the Socialist Congressman from Milwaukee.

"We started a Socialist paper to fight La Follette," Berger said. "I have fought him for 25 years, and now I have come here to ask you to vote for him. The Socialist party did not grow as it should. That was the fault of conditions."

"It is because we have very few American workers who are compelled to stay workers all their lives. There is always a chance for them to get ahead on the shoulders of the immigrant, the newcomer. There are many different nationalities here, and national hatreds and national jeal-ousies exist. We have, that hope that some day we too may have money. All this prevents class consciousness. It is all beyond our control."

"La Follette is no hero; he is a shrewd politician. He has a better record than any other politician."
"La Follette made many mistakes, but now he is for public ownership of public utilities. He is willing to learn even at the age of 70. He fought corruption more than anyone at Washington."

JAPAN TAKES STIFF STAND IN DISCUSSING IMMIGRATION

Attitude of Adachi at Con-

Work on Arbitration Protocol to a Standstill.

AMENDMENT IS SENT BACK TO COMMITTEE

Refuses to Agree That League of Nations Shall Be Powerless in Purely Domestic Questions.

By the Associated Press.
GENEVA, Sept. 29.—Two members of the Japanese delegation declared to press representatives today that if Japan did not obtain satisfaction of her demand for an amendment to the proposed protocol of arbitration and security, she probably, much to their regret, would be obliged to vote against the protocol when it was submitted to the assembly of the League of Nations.

"It is this happens, the protocol instituted by Foreign Minister Benes of Czechoslovakia and elaborated by the disarmament commission and its subcommittee, will fail of adoption and consequently the international disarmament conference provided for in the protocol, and planned for next summer, will not be held."

After a lengthy private discus-
delegates with a view to finding a
the declaration of the Japanese

Dispatch and New York World.

GENEVA, Sept. 29.—Japan has brought the arbitration protocol to a standstill over the questions of immigration to America and the Chinese policy.

The months of intense work to make an aggressive war impossible in danger of being lost, although the real cause is never mentioned.

The protocol cannot go before the assembly today, as scheduled, because M. Adachi, the Japanese representative here, at the end of a long Sunday session, said that Japan must move an amendment striking out the part of article 1 which would make it possible to declare to be the aggressor in war any State which refused to abide by the decision of the league council and the International Court that the conflict had arisen over question which was out of their competence because it was a purely domestic one of another state.

To save the situation, which threatened the existence of the league itself, the question was hurried, on motion of M. Loucheur, French delegate, back to the subcommittee. It was sent back at 10:40 o'clock last night, at the end of an almost continuous session at which everyone was aware that hung on the Japanese amendment.

Everybody was as equally aware that the amendment turned on the question of Japanese immigration to America in part, and on Japan's relations with China in the other.
A canvass of sentiment in the First Committee, which, with the Third Committee, must present the protocol to the Assembly, indicates the majority of M. Loucheur pan. I learn that M. Briand has instructed M. Loucheur the French delegation would have to vote against it in a showdown if Japan refuses to compromise. The crisis is the more serious as there had been meetings all day between the heads of the delegations to avoid the dramatic scene M. Adachi created. The British and French both failed to change the Japanese attitude, which is believed to be based on fresh and express orders from Tokio.

British Colonies Against Japan.

are against the amendment—being in the same position toward Japanese immigration as the United tairs.

HUSBAND SUPPORTS WIFE'S CONFESSION

Declares He Administered the First Dose in Food

Planned in Cow Pasture.

By the Associated Press.
MARION, Ill., Sept. 29.—Seated by the side of his bride of seven days, Robert Tate, coal miner, yesterday confessed to Sheriff George Galligan and other officials that he had administered the first dose of poison to Joseph L. Herrington, whose widow he married 29 days after Herrington's death. His confession came after a long grilling during which his wife pleaded with him to confess his part of the plot which they had jointly planned, so that they could eventually be married.

Tate said he placed arsenic in food in Herrington's lunch pail, at the mine, where they were employed, Monday, Aug. 25. Herrington died Sept. 5, after Mrs. Tate, according to her confession Saturday, gave him one and a half teaspoons of arsenic in a glass of buttermilk.

In her confession Mrs. Tate said she had turned against Tate and reproached him for not at first accepting his share of the blame. Yesterday, however, she called him endearing names and the couple appeared to be on the best of terms. They retained E. N. Bowen, Judge of the Herrington Circuit Court, as their attorney.

Warrant for Third Person.
A warrant has been issued, it was learned today, for J. L. Williams, who, according to the records of a drug store in Johnston City, purchased one-half pound of poison Aug. 5. Sheriff Galligan said he was convinced that Tate did not steal the poison, as he told in his confession, but that he obtained it through another person.

The stomach of Herrington, which was sent to the State Department of Health, it was learned, has been forwarded to the State University at Urbana for an analysis.

The inquest into Herrington's death, which was reopened following the exhumation of the body last Friday, will be completed tomorrow, Corcoran McCowan said today, and following the inquest Tate and his wife will be given a preliminary hearing. In view of their confessions, prosecuting officials said, the couple is expected to waive the formality of a preliminary hearing.

Confronted by Husband.
In his confession, Tate said he had at first opposed Herrington's request that he come to his home to board, because the couple were too religious for him. However, he yielded later and in December, 1932, moved to the Herrington home in Johnston City. His infatuation for Mrs. Herrington, he said, came gradually, but it was not until April, 1934, that he became intimate with her. He had been injured in a mine, he said.

DAVIS TO REST BEFORE SPEAKING IN MARYLAND

Returns to New York After Tour in West Virginia; Baker Reports Progress in Ohio

Special to the Post-Dispatch.
NEW YORK, Sept. 29.—John W. Davis, who returned yesterday from a speaking tour of his native state of West Virginia, rested in his home in Locust Valley, L. I., and plans to stay there today unless some emergency calls him to New York.

He will go to Maryland tomorrow and after speeches at Baltimore and Frederick will return to New York for the Madison Square Garden rally Thursday night.

Among the callers at Davis' Belmont headquarters at the Hotel Belmont yesterday was Newton D. Baker, former Secretary of War, who told of the formation of an Ohio branch of the League of Young Democrats, with headquarters at Cleveland.

Joseph M. Price, who headed the coalition movement, which supported Henry H. Curran for Mayor against Mayor Hylan three years ago, announced the formation of a league of independents for Davis.

and after his return from the hospital he and Mrs. Herrington began to express their affection for each other.

After detailing incidents of their clandestine meetings, Tate told how he was confronted by Herrington and asked whether he would marry Mrs. Herrington and take care of the children. His feigning ignorance of the significance of the question, he said, aroused the husband's ire and they almost came to blows. He then left the Herrington home.

Planned Plot in Pasture.
The poison plot, he said, was first planned during a secret meeting of the two in a cow pasture, two miles from the Herrington home, after Mrs. Herrington had refused his suggestion that she kill her husband with a revolver. They decided, he said, that she would place it in her husband's food.

The arsenic, he said, he stole from a drug store in Johnston City and took it with him to the mine where he was working. After placing some of it on peas in Herrington's dinner pail, he said, he met Mrs. Herrington that night and gave her the rest of it to be mixed with her husband's food.

They met nearly every evening thereafter, and each time he inquired about the effects of the poison. Herrington died Friday, Sept. 5, and was buried the following Sunday. Immediately after the funeral, his confession continued, he and Mrs. Herrington went to look for a home in West Frankfort, whether they moved a few days later, and their marriage followed.

HIGH RIVER, Alberta, Sept. 29.—The Prince of Wales will leave his ranch Wednesday, spending Thursday afternoon in Jasper Park and reaching Vancouver Friday. He expects to spend two or three days in Vancouver and Victoria and to stop at Banff on his way back to Calgary, where he is due Oct. 9.

The Prince's stay at his ranch has been characterized by great activity, though a different sort from that of his Long Island visit. He pitched hay today and went over the plans for management of his ranch. Tomorrow he will entertain neighboring ranchers at luncheon and take a ride on the range. He will preside Wednesday at a sale of blooded stock.

He has enjoyed climbing the mountains near his ranch, hunting and fishing. He goes out with the rod at every opportunity and brought in a large string of trout Saturday.

PRINCE CAETANI TO WIND UP AFFAIRS IN WASHINGTON

Italian Ambassador, Resigned, Preparing to Leave Rome for U. S.

By the Associated Press.
ROME, Sept. 29.—Prince Galeazzo Caetani is preparing to leave for Washington to complete his duties as Italian Ambassador, from which post he has resigned.

"I am not a diplomatist nor a politician, but an engineer," he said today. "I hope I have accomplished something toward a better and closer understanding between the two countries. In retiring, I am confident I shall be even more useful to Italy and also to the country whose hospitality I have enjoyed for many years."

Questioned about the situation in Italy, Prince Caetani said, "astonishing progress has been accomplished under the Mussolini Government during the last two years. I truly believe that if Signor Mussolini abandoned the reins of government, the opposition would find itself disarmed, but there is no danger of this eventuality."

JUDGE REFUSES TO KEEP MRS. FERGUSON OFF BALLOT

Injunction Denied in District Court at Austin in Suit Against Texas Nominée.

By the Associated Press.
AUSTIN, Tex., Sept. 29.—Mrs. Miriam A. Ferguson today won the first step in the court fight to have her disqualified as Democratic nominee for the governorship of Texas. An injunction to keep her name off the ballot was refused by Judge George C. Johnson in Fifty-third District Court.

Barrett said today's stipulation is an admission that Missouri will win if the Government does, and may win anyway. "It is an unusual compliment to Missouri," he said. "for I know of no other State which has been able to secure such a stipulation in this or any case."

The old common law principles on which the plaintiff, Charles M. Dickson of St. Antonio, relied, were said by the Judge to be obsolete in this country and he could find no inhibition in either the Texas Constitution or the statutes of this State which denies the women the right to hold office.

CONCESSION TO STATE IN ANTI-TRUST SUIT

Atlas Portland Cement Co.
Agrees to Plead Guilty if Convicted in New York.

By the Jefferson City Correspondent
of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, Sept. 29.—The Atlas Portland Cement Co. of Pennsylvania, defendant in an anti-trust suit pending in the State Supreme Court, today filed a stipulation in court, agreeing to plead guilty in the Missouri case, if the company loses a Federal anti-trust case brought in New York and now pending in the United States Supreme Court.

The Atlas company operates a large cement plant at Hannibal, Mo. An anti-trust suit was filed against the company last July by Attorney-General Barrett, charging it had entered into an alleged combine or pool, operating in restraint of trade and competition in the sale of Portland cement.

The suit was based largely on membership of the company in the Mid-West Cement Credit and Statistical Bureau of Chicago, an organization of several large cement manufacturers, which interchange statistical information on production, rates and prices of cement. Federal suit is pending against the Mid-West Bureau at Chicago.

Refused Company's Offer.
Commenting on the stipulation, Attorney-General Barrett declared it virtually was "heads, Missouri wins, and tails the Atlas loses."

The only advantage the Atlas Co. obtained from the stipulation, he said, was an opportunity to concentrate its legal forces on the Federal case now pending in the United States Supreme Court. "Some time ago the Atlas Co. offered to stipulate that the Missouri case should be won or lost, according to the outcome of the Government's case," he said. "and I refused on the ground that we expected to win our suit whether the Government won or not."

Barrett said today's stipulation is an admission that Missouri will win if the Government does, and may win anyway. "It is an unusual compliment to Missouri," he said. "for I know of no other State which has been able to secure such a stipulation in this or any case."

The old common law principles on which the plaintiff, Charles M. Dickson of St. Antonio, relied, were said by the Judge to be obsolete in this country and he could find no inhibition in either the Texas Constitution or the statutes of this State which denies the women the right to hold office.

THOS. W. MILLER RESIGNS Alien Property Custodian to Devote Time to Veterans' Federation.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 29.—Thomas W. Miller tendered his resignation to President Coolidge today as Alien Property Custodian.

Miller recently was elected head of the Federation Internationale des Anciens Combattants, better known as the "Fidac," an international organization of World War veterans, at a meeting of that organization held in Paris.

The President, in indicating he would accept the resignation asked Miller to continue in his office for the time being.

Miller was appointed to office by President Harding in March, 1921. Before the State Supreme Court, he has been active in the study of soldier rehabilitation questions and is a member of the American battle monument commission. He was a member of the House from Delaware, in the sixty-fourth Congress.

DEMOCRATS REPLY TO HYDE'S CHARGES

Say He Makes Barefaced Attempt to Falsify Records—Nelson's Statement Repeated.

By the Jefferson City Correspondent
of the Post-Dispatch.

Gov. Hyde was accused by the Democratic State Committee today of using "foul means in the role of a petty politician" in his attacks upon Arthur W. Nelson, Democratic nominee for Governor. The committee's statement was a reply to one issued in Trenton last night by the Governor in which he sought to connect Nelson with the Ku Klux Klan.

The Governor in his latest statement quoted Nelson to the extent that he said he was not a member and then said: "He does not deny, however, that he ever has been a member of the Klan."

Nelson, referring to the Governor's St. Joseph speech, said in a statement published in St. Louis Saturday: "I should ignore this charge now if it were not for the high official position held by Mr. Hyde, and now I repeat my former statement, that I am not now, nor have I ever been, a member of the Ku Klux Klan."

"Gov. Hyde has thrown aside all pretense of dignity with which his office should have invested him," the State Committee statement reads, and "regardless of his previous shortcomings in this respect, appears once again in the role of petty politician, seeking desperately by fair means or foul, to find flaws in the armor of Dr. Nelson, the Democratic nominee for Governor."

"The Hyde statement is a repetition of past charges, repeatedly replied to, and it will not be noticed at this time by Dr. Nelson, Democratic opponent of Gov. Hyde's proteges, Prof. Sam A. Baker. Since, however, the Governor intentionally and deliberately omits from the record the statement issued by Dr. Nelson as it appeared in the metropolitan press on Tuesday, Sept. 9, attention is called to the language used at that time and to his statement of last Saturday. This statement was quoted above."

"If Hyde had desired to be fair to a distinguished Missourian, whose honesty and integrity no one has ever questioned, he would not have quoted a portion of the Nelson statement upon which to lay his false inferences for a second ridiculous appeal to prejudice," the committee statement continued.

"In his statement the Republican Governor of Missouri makes a barefaced attempt to falsify the records. He stoops to direct misrepresentation."

"The Governor," the statement

DANCES WAY TO WEALTHY ARGENTINE'S HEART

LEONORA HUGHES.
Leonora Hughes Met Prospective Husband While She Was Dancing in Paris.

Special Cable to the Post-Dispatch.
PARIS, Sept. 29.—After a lightening courtship beginning when he first saw her dancing in a Parisian cafe, Carlos Ortiz Basualdo, 25 years old, Buenos Aires millionaire, is to marry Leonora Hughes, internationally famous dancer, according to the Paris Herald.

Basualdo, who is popular in Parisian society, said a formal announcement would not be made until he and Miss Hughes reached New York some time next month. The dancer is to sail Wednesday, and it is understood Basualdo will go to New York 10 days later. The marriage will probably take place in Buenos Aires. The couple are to live in Paris.

Miss Hughes will give up the stage, she said, in accordance with her husband's wishes, as soon as she has fulfilled a contract in New York.

It is rumored here that Nicholas Basualdo, Carlos' younger brother, who is now at Biarritz, is planning to marry Mrs. George Jay Gould.

concludes, "is guilty not only of misstatement, but of a flagrant attempt to erect a smoke screen which will not only cover the defects of the Hyde administration, but divert public attention from the real issues of the campaign and the pledges to the people made by Dr. Nelson."

MINISTER HELD ON CHARGE OF ABDUCTING GIRL, 14

The Rev. J. E. Yates Had Formerly Abducted Child's Parents of Her Marriage.

By the Associated Press.
NOWATA, Okla., Sept. 29.—The Rev. Joseph E. Yates, 49 years old, who faces a charge of abducting a girl, 14, who sang in the choir of his church in Allamore, near here, has been arrested at "Ballinger," according to word received at the Sheriff's office today.

The girl, with whom Rev. Mr. Yates is alleged to have left Allamore a week ago today in a motor car, was said to be at the home of his parents at Winters, Tex. Sheriff W. F. Gillespie said he would leave for Ballinger today to bring the couple here.

An Allamore dispatch says parents of the girl, Georgia Field, received a telegram from the Rev. Mr. Yates that the couple had been married on a license issued to them in Tennessee.

BOY ATTEMPTS TO END LIFE

Distraught over the death of his sister, Frank Hassel, 14 years old, of 312 Russell boulevard, attempted suicide last evening, shortly after returning from her funeral. He is at city hospital in a serious condition from poison.

The boy and his sister, Mrs. Edna Worth of 1111 South Twelfth street, had been near to each other. After returning from her funeral, he was at city hospital in a serious condition from poison.

Of the four indictments which appear on the docket today, the State elected to go to trial on the one relating to the deposit of $200 by Miss Irene Michel of the Purdy Box Lunch Co., 1147 Market street, on Dec. 27, 1933, 19 days before the trial closed.

The chief points for the State to prove will be that the deposit was made; that Meininger was not the owner of the bank was then failing. It is conceded the facts are overwhelmingly against the defense. The defense, in all probability, will seek out any flaws in the evidence, or in the instructions to the jury, with a view toward possibly laying ground for an appeal.

Punishment for the charge which Meininger now faces is two to five years in the penitentiary, the same as for larceny.

One Appeal Pending.
Failure of the bank was followed by the return of 48 indictments charging Meininger with embezzlement and with accepting deposits in a failing institution. At the trial of the first indictment, before Judge Brewer at Union, Meininger was convicted of embezzlement on May 11, 1933 and sentenced to five years' imprisonment. His appeal from the conviction is set for Oct. 19 before the State Supreme Court.

When the State sought to bring Meininger to trial on "another charge, pending the appeal from the first conviction, his lawyers objected, claiming further trials had been prevented by Judge Brewer's action in formally sentencing Meininger after conviction. The State Supreme Court, however, overruled this technical objection.

Selection of a jury began at 11:10 and was completed at 11:29. Court recess for lunch followed.

At the conference between Judge Brewer and the State Supreme Court, Judge approved of the State's suggestion that all four cases now on the docket be tried at this term, one after another. The defense then objected to this, however.

Defendant Edna Worth Hassel, Meininger was in the courtroom ahead of time. He shook hands all around and acted the part of a jovial host. Asked what he has been doing since his last trial, he replied, "Oh, a number of things." He was noted that his hair is graying. His personal attorney, William R. Gilbert, said Meininger is residing with his mother in West Grove.

The State is represented by Circuit Attorney Sidener, his first assistant, I. Joel Wilson; former Assistant Circuit Attorney James E. Garstang, now practicing in St. Louis, and prosecuting Attorney Fred A. Kasemann of Franklin County. Defense lawyers are Gilbert, former Circuit Attorney Thomas B. Haver and former Assistant Attorney William Bear; W. L. Cole of Union and James Booth of Pacific, Mo.

DEFENSE MOTION TO QUASH OVERRULED

UNION, Mo., Sept. 29.—Arthur O. Meininger, looter of the defunct Night and Day Bank, who, by asking legal technicalities, has succeeded in staying out of prison since he wrecked the bank Jan. 6, 1932, went to trial here today on an indictment charging him with assaulting to the receipt of a deposit while knowing the bank was failing.

Defense counsel's last technicality was a motion to quash a group of four indictments, including the one to be tried. The motion alleged the indictments are duplicative and invalid, because they include two counts, charging Meininger with assaulting to deposits when he knew the bank was failing and to receiving deposits when he knew it was insolvent. The motion was overruled.

Circuit Judge R. A. Brewer, before whom the trial began today, disposed of the defense's objection to Meininger, Mo., last Thursday, by overruling a similar motion. Today's motion, therefore, was merely a formality, for the sake of the record.

JAPAN TAKES STIFF STAND ON IMMIGRATION

Fairs of other countries in Japan's interest, announced his opposition to the amendment.
It became obvious there was a split when M. Politis, chairman of the committee, said both M. Adachi and Senhor Fernandez exaggerated the importance of the Japanese amendment. He asserted the protocol was strong enough and that if it permitted the League to act against an aggressor without insisting on the few lines which the Japanese want eliminated, he therefore announced for Adachi's amendment.
Belgium followed, while M. Loucheur hurried around the table to Adachi. Politis and Fernandez, and then made the motion to send the question back to the sub-committee so that all time necessary might be had to solve the knottiest problem before the League—"to save Japan's friendship."
M. Loucheur's reason for throwing the protocol back into the sub-committee, I learn, was the belief that the Japanese amendment is in its present form as it would remove from the League the possibility of playing any role in a Pacific conflict. It cannot be adopted since the British dominions are firmly against it, but if Japan could put it over, it would limit the League's possible activities to European affairs.
The atmosphere had also become so tense through the evident nervous feeling with which the Japanese regard the amendment that it was impossible to continue the discussion without risk of an open breach.
Question of Immigration.
Nothing could move the Japanese in their objection to the protocol as it stands. M. Adachi protesting that Japan could not accept the possibility of being adjudged the aggressor in a conflict simply because the conflict was declared to have arisen out of a question of the domestic policy of another state.
M. Adachi said Japan was always against line 8 in article 15 of the pact of the League, which made it possible for a state to submit a question for international arbitration by declaring it to be a domestic problem. He added Japan would not now bind itself further by reiterating the same principle in Article 7 of the protocol.
M. Adachi asserted the League would show itself indifferent to justice arising from permitting another State to plead exclusive domestic jurisdiction.
The more M. Adachi pleaded, the more obvious it was Japan is insisting on the League's jurisdiction in questions in which Japan is vitally interested—expansion and immigration.

ENDS LIFE AFTER KILLING HIS WIFE ACCIDENTALLY

Dallas Man Leaves Note in Room of Houston Lodging House Saying He Loved Her.
By the Associated Press.
HOUSTON, Tex., Sept. 29.—William Robinson of Dallas, whose wife was shot to death Saturday morning, died in a hospital at Galveston yesterday from a bullet wound, said by police to have been self-inflicted. He had written a confession that he killed his wife before he shot himself.
The confession, written in an unsteady hand, read as follows: "Last night I killed my wife, God being my help, it was an accident, but under the conditions and being scared after the gun went off, I ran. I loved her with all my heart. I wish my body buried with her. With our things do whatever you see fit to do with them. Tell all my friends please believe this, for it is true."
"I am taking my life to pay. You will find $150 in my purse. It is for funeral expenses, but there is $1000 in the bank to be used if needed."
"If my wife's body hasn't been found you will find her at 1509 Cockrell street, Dallas. God bless her. I didn't have any idea of hurting her, but the gun accidentally went off."
Mrs. Robinson worked as a shroudmaker for a coffin company and may have been in a shop of her own make.

and efficiency of the Air Service, which the flight evidenced and the new prestige which the flyers have brought to our flag, will have a far-reaching effect on the international relations of this country, the benefit of which cannot be overestimated."
Hughes extended the congratulations of the State Department and expressed deep admiration for the "courage, perseverance and extraordinary skill of the flyers."
Replying to the Secretary of State, Assistant Secretary Dwight F. Davis said:
"The War Department has felt that the flight is a scientific achievement of a high order, made by a little band of well-trained and energetic army men, who are carrying on in our time the pioneer work done by their predecessors of former generations. Our military personnel is thereby rendering the same service to the world at large as was performed by our frontier troops when they opened up the West, established the overland trails and assisted in the development of the transcontinental railway system. Lieut. Smith and his colleagues are fitting successors to Lewis and Clark."
Secretary Weeks sent the following telegram to Lieut. Lowell H. Smith, commander of the flight: "Congratulations to you and your comrades on being the first to fly around the world. Our people rejoice that you are Americans. The War Department and the Army of the United States are proud that you are American soldiers."

WRECKAGE OF STEAMER ON WHICH 28 PERISHED FOUND

By the Associated Press.
CLEVELAND, O., Sept. 29.—With the recovery of wreckage from the whaleback freighter Clifton, efforts today were confined to the recovery of the bodies of 28 men, officers and crew of the ill-fated vessel. Search is centered on the Canadian shore, where it is believed the bodies will be carried off by its own soil.
Reports that wreckage had been found were received by A. E. R. Schneider, general manager of the Progress Steamship Co., Cleveland, owners of the Clifton, last night. A forward end of a pilot house and broken hatch covers picked up about 70 miles from Goderich, on the Detroit-Goderich course, by Capt. Dalton Hudson of the steamer Glencairn Saturday, were parts of the Clifton, Schneider said.
Other wreckage was sighted by the captain of the A. C. Minch, 14 miles southwest of Thunder Bay, and by the Tug Falcon, 35 miles southeast by east off Alpena, Mich.

DOWNTOWN FIRE DAMAGE $60 BUT LOSS BY WATER IS $16,000

Damage by fire was estimated at $60, by water at $16,000, in a blaze discovered when an automatic sprinkler turned in an alarm at the Hellrung & Grimm Building, 902 Washington avenue, at 2:15 a. m. yesterday.
The fire was confined to the rear second floor of the six-story building occupied by the Empire Dress Co., where it started. That concern estimated its loss at $60 from fire and $4000 from water. The Hellrung & Grimm House Furnishing Co.'s damage by water was estimated at $10,000, and that of A. C. McClurg & Co., which occupies the basement, at $2000 by water. The loss was insured.
Tries to End Life With Poison.
Mrs. Vincenia Holdt, 25, of 4271 Washington boulevard, wife of H. B. Holdt, a salesman, was taken to the Missouri Baptist Sanitarium at 6 p. m. yesterday, suffering from poison. She refused to give any reason for her attempt at suicide. Holdt took his wife to the hospital in a taxicab. Her condition is serious.

DENOUNCES POOR RELIEF METHODS AS A CRIME

Secretary of Labor Davis Delivers Addresses Here in Behalf of Orphaned Children and Aged Poor.

"If the average American should visit the average poor farm, I declare he could not again lay his head in peace upon his pillow until he prayed to whatever God he knows to forgive him for neglecting to do his share in reforming the conditions he would find."
This spoke Secretary of Labor James J. Davis, in St. Louis yesterday, to deliver four addresses on behalf of the orphaned children and the aged poor. As director-general of the Federal Order of Moose, he has control of that organization's charitable work and institutions. As Secretary of Labor he is conducting a nation-wide survey to relieve the conditions of which he speaks. He asserts the survey is based on the fact that there has been "in more poor houses than any man in America."
In the morning he spoke at two church services, at St. John's Evangelical Church and at Union Methodist Episcopal Church. In the afternoon and evening he talked to gatherings of Moose at Granite City and at Melbourne Hotel.
Work Needs Missionaries.
"If there was ever a time when we needed missionaries it is now," he declared. "We need missionaries to tell the American people of the conditions in which human beings live in our so-called charitable institutions which disgrace civilization."
"I charge the American people with a crime, which has but one condoning feature—it is not a deliberate crime. I charge them with maintaining institutions where men and women, boys and girls, live and die in filth and squalor; where under intolerable conditions innocent youth and depraved adults, normal children with subnormal and debauched adults, the mentally well with the mentally diseased, are charged with throwing on the scrap heap men, women and children who might be made into self-respecting human beings, a credit to themselves, to their communities and to humanity. I charge that the American people have allowed civilization to march forward and leave our whole system of public charity to languish 100 years behind the time."
Secretary Davis said that fraternal organizations with 10,000,000 members were behind his department in its present survey, man

GUAM ATTACKS U. S. POLICY

Island's C. of C. Protests Against Transports' Withdrawal.
By the Associated Press.
GUAM, Sept. 29.—Protest against the policy of the United States navy in withdrawing transports from the route touching at Guam has been filed by the Guam Chamber of Commerce with the Navy Department. The protest recites that the last steamer which docked in Guam was in July and that the next one is scheduled for November, and charges that the naval policy of economy is cutting off trade between the Ladrones Islands and San Francisco, depriving Guam of its best market for exports.
After the arrival of the vessel scheduled to stop here in November, no other steamer is definitely due to touch in Guam, says the protest, which adds that a shortage of supplies is already being felt in the islands. which is not yet completed. The survey indicates, he declared, that in almost every instance poor relief is based on the county as a political unit, and there is an appalling waste of money and labor.
Poor Farms Criticized.
"Among the 3000 poor farms in the country there are 40 maintained and supported for a single inmate. In many instances an inmate is kept in filth and squalor, where money would be saved if he were established in the best hotel in St. Louis."
"In America today there are some 500,000 neglected children. It is estimated that from this army is recruited 80 per cent of the 400,000 who crowd our jails and penitentiaries. Would it not be better to teach these 500,000 children the difference between right and wrong? We would be on the road to that far-off time when the jails and penitentiaries are torn down."
Speaking of possible remedies to the poorhouse situation, he said: "We might well consider plans for the centralization of the care of the indigent, reducing the present exorbitant cost and making for economy in public expenditures. It would be well to consider providing occupations for these inmates, to make them in some degree self-supporting. There can be no excuse for permitting any human being who might care for himself to sit idly down with folded hands to wait for death." Urges Support of Coolidge.
Davis did not mention politics in any of his four speeches, but issued a separate statement in which he praised the present Republican administration and urged labor to support the re-election of President Coolidge. He credited the administration with the practical elimination of the seven-day week and the 12-hour day, in the steel industries, and described the Immigration law and the extension of the Federal free employment agencies as examples of the President's friendly attitude to the working man.

HENKE'S COUNSEL PLAN TO ATTACK HIS CONVICTION

If Motion for New Trial Is Overruled, Appeal Likely Will Be Taken to Supreme Court.

Attorneys for Harry A. Henke Jr. will take legal steps to prevent the execution of the 20-year prison term assessed against him Saturday night by a jury at Clayton, which found him guilty, on circumstantial evidence, of the murder of his wife, Marie, in their Richmond Heights home, July 11.
While Henke's attorney, Eugene McMahon, has not yet announced what action he will take on behalf of his 24-year-old client, former State Senator A. E. L. Gardner, who assisted in the defense, said today he expected a motion for a new trial would be filed within the next day or two. In the event such a motion is overruled by Judge McElhinney, as is probable, it is expected an appeal will be taken to the Supreme Court.
Meanwhile, Henke is a prisoner at Clayton jail, occupying the same cell in which he was lodged for about two weeks after he was first accused of the crime of having his wife to death with a heavy iron wrench.
Since Saturday night, when he was led weeping from the courtroom after the verdict was returned, Henke's outward appearance has changed considerably. During the four-day trial in which the State, through Special Prosecutor Robert A. Roessel, forged a damaging chain of circumstantial evidence, he appeared daily at court neatly dressed and well-groomed, and almost constantly maintained an air of composure and ease.
Henke wore a two days' growth of beard when a Post-Dispatch reporter called at the jail today. He had discarded his coat and collar, and the neat white shirt he wore in court had become soiled and wrinkled. He reaffirmed his previous declaration that he had been "framed" and once a single tear trickled down his cheek.
"Money is my only trouble," he said, "I want to go straight through to the Supreme Court. If necessary, but I don't know where the money will come from. My father has mortgaged his home in Los Angeles and it looks like he will have to sell it now if he helps me again. If I go to prison it will kill my mother."
Henke declared he was convicted, not by the testimony at the trial, but by the closing address of Prosecutor Roessel in which the circumstantial evidence was woven into a hypothetical story of the manner in which the crime supposedly was committed. "If there had been no argument, I would be a free man now," he said.

COOLIDGE PLANS TO OPEN
FIRST WORLD SERIES GAME

He Will Throw Out First Ball Saturday, If Washington Wins Pennant.

By the Associated Press.
WASHINGTON, Sept. 29.—President Coolidge will deliver an address Saturday dedicating the monument to the First Division troops of the American Expeditionary Force, in which he is expected to discuss the foreign relations policy of the administration, as well as to outline his views on military and naval affairs.

On the same day Mr. Coolidge has a tentative engagement to throw out the first ball at the opening here of the world's series, in case Washington wins the American League pennant. On Wednesday, he intends to participate in the official welcoming home planned for the baseball team on its arrival from Boston. There are no indications that the President is considering any change in his present program for participation in the campaign. This has consisted so far of conferences with party leaders who have called on him, and in delivering occasional speeches. In none of these, it is pointed out, has the President mentioned directly the campaign, election or candidates.

President and Mrs. Coolidge attended outdoor services conducted by the Grand Lodge of Masons of Washington yesterday on Temple Heights. The President and Mrs. Coolidge and Mrs. Frank W. Stearns of Boston, also went to the regular morning services of the First Congregational Church.

LA FOLLETTE'S WIFE SAYS HE IS MISUNDERSTOOD BY MANY

By the Associated Press.

MOUNTAIN LAKE PARK, Md., Sept. 29.—Asking fair-minded consideration of her husband's candidacy, Mrs. Robert M. La Follette, in an address at a political rally here yesterday, declared the independent presidential nominee long had been a victim of misrepresentation and undeserved criticism. Many voters, she said, have an erroneous impression of his record and views. As Mrs. La Follette traced her husband's political career and assailed the Harding-Coolidge administration, her audience, made up largely of women, listened in silence. She spoke of Harding as a "kindly man" who erred in the selection of some of his Cabinet officers, and asserted that President Coolidge has the "rich man's point of view" and is "utterly out of sympathy with the workingman."

"If you want a human Government," urged Mrs. La Follette, "turn to those whose records show they sympathize with the mass. If you think Mr. La Follette is a dangerous man, vote for someone you think is not. I'm not afraid of your judgment if you will look at the issues and candidates free from prejudice."

"Mr. La Follette always has been practical. * * * So it happens that when many of the reforms he has worked for are finally written into law, as many of them have been, they seem natural and right."

Referring to herself as a "pacifist," Mrs. La Follette said she believed that "no threatened dangers' no violation of principles, could come upon us which would compare with the destruction of civilization that will inevitably follow another world war."

"I cannot say that Mr. La Follette is a pacifist," she continued. "He thinks there may be supreme principles for which, under extraordinary circumstances, men must fight as a last resort. But he believes that as organized, society, in its slow evolution, has developed more rational means of settling individual differences than brute force, so must the nations of the world find ways of settling disagreements other than war."

Est these delicious "fruit balls" and well as nature intended. Just what your stomach needs. Through the day.

GOMPERS DEFENDS COURT-CURBING PLAN

Says It Does Not Contemplate Overriding of Decisions in Wave of Emotion.

By the Associated Press.
WASHINGTON, Sept. 22.—Proposals for a limitation of the powers of the Supreme Court are defended in a "campaign document" issued by Samuel Gompers, president of the American Federation of Labor.

He criticized the present power of the court as "wholly incompatible with democracy and wholly intolerable to those who have faith in their power to govern themselves."

"The demand," Gompers explains, "is not that the court be deprived of all power to pass on the constitutionality of legislation, but that it be deprived solely of its power of the final veto. What is demanded is that the people finally may be able to outvoice the Supreme Court and write their will into law in spite of the Supreme Court."

The proposal is incorporated, Gompers says, in a declaration of the American Federation of Labor and is a plank in the platform of Senator La Follette, independent candidate, but "is an issue in this campaign solely because the spokesmen of a great political party have seen fit to champion the cause of arbitrary and tyrannical power." He names President Coolidge and Charles G. Dawes as these spokesmen.

No Hasty Action.

"It is demanded," he continued, "that Congress shall have the power to re-enact any law declared invalid by the Supreme Court and that upon re-enactment the law shall stand. This does not contemplate hasty overturning of Supreme Court decisions, nor does it contemplate the enactment of legislation over the head of the Supreme Court during a temporary wave of emotion or during any condition which might lead Congress to do what later might be regretted."

No Attacks on Court.

"The American Federation of Labor believes that a majority of the people of the United States are opposed to further usurpation of power by the Supreme Court and to a system under which a court, composed of judges who are appointed for life, can be the legislation passed by elected representatives. There is involved in this opinion no attack on the court as such, and there is no desire anywhere to deprive the court of what should be its proper functions and power."

"The present situation is that the Supreme Court, by a decision of five to four, may declare null and void any act passed by Congress. The court having so decided, Congress except through the cumbersome process of constitutional amendment."

Gompers also calls attention to plank in the platform of the "progressive party" headed by Theodore Roosevelt in 1912, which he said demanded "such restriction of the power of the courts as shall leave to the people the ultimate authority to determine fundamental questions of social welfare and public policy."

ANOTHER WHISKY SHIPMENT SEIZED AND DESTROYED

Carload, Similar to That Confiscated Near St. Louis Last Week, Found in Oklahoma.

By The Associated Press. Picher, Okla., Sept. 22.—A carload of Cuban whiskey, consigned as "shingles" to a lumber company here, has been seized by Federal agents and the contents emptied into Tar Creek. A similar shipment, disguised as lumber, and traced from Louisiana, was seized and destroyed in St. Louis County, Missouri, last week.

P. M. Medham of New Orleans and Daley Bolware of Jackson, Miss., Federal enforcement officers, followed the car from Mandeville, La., from which place it was shipped. The car arrived at Picher Thursday afternoon and Riley Clark, special officer, was stationed to guard it. When no one had appeared to claim the car, officers decided to seize it.

W. E. Lyking, manager for the lumber company to which the car was consigned, was arrested, but he denied any knowledge of the liquor shipment. Officers said Lyking probably would be taken before the United States Commissioner at Vinita.

The shipment contained 924 gallons, and at present bootlegging prices is worth about $28,000. Bundles of shingles and laths were covered over the whiskey which was mostly in one gallon cans included in what appeared to be legitimate cases. The officers believe a ring of bootleggers for whom the shipment was intended had received a tip to "lay off" and for that reason did not claim the car.

LAST OF THE CIGAR STORE MOHICANS DISAPPEARS

Chief Redwood Maintained Vigil for 20 Years—$10 Reward Offered for Return.

Chief Redwood, one of the last of the cigar store Mohicans in St. Louis, is lost, strayed or stolen from his camping ground for the last 20 years—the tobacco shop of Lewis L. Grotzky at 4241 Olive street. Grotzky offers $10 reward for his return and no questions asked of the Chief or his kidnaper.

Straying rain and snow and dust and smoke, the Chief has maintained his vigil day and night at 4241, never changing his stoical attitude by so much as an inch and always staving his trusty rifle at some invisible paleface. Perhaps, reasons Grotzky, the Chief contracted rheumatism and thought it best to spend the fall and winter in Hot Springs or Florida. Police, however, conjecture that he got inebriated and ran away because someone threw a stone at him in his face. Anyway, the beloved old blackhead was missing from in front of the store entrance yesterday morning. The chain which held him to the wall, a slave to civilization, was broken.

If Real Quality and extreme low prices mean anything at all, these unusual values will surely appeal to you.

MOTHER-IN-LAW SLAYER SURRENDERS TO POLICE

Vinton Perin of Cincinnati Declares Wife's Parent "Persecuted" Him for 20 Years.

CINCINNATI, O., Sept. 23.—Rain-soaked and disheveled, with his clothes bearing the marks of 60 hours out of doors, Vinton Perin, 50 years old, surrendered himself today to answer for the slaying of his mother-in-law, Mrs. Frances D. Rawson, 77 years old, and for the shooting of his sister-in-law, Miss Nina Rawson.

Alternately sobbing, jesting and pacing the floor in detective headquarters, Perin told Chief of Detectives Kirgan that, after fleeing from the Rawson household last Friday night, he walked many miles. When he reached Walton, Ky., 35 miles from Cincinnati, he turned back.

Phones for Police.

At seven o'clock this morning, Safety Director Tudor received a telephone call from Perin. Perin said that if Tudor would come out he would surrender himself at the corner of Kemper Lane and McMillan avenue, Walnut Hills.

Tudor communicated, at once with Kirgan. Kirgan reached the scene at the same time as the Safety Director. Perin stood on the corner and, after he had talked a moment to Tudor, said he wanted to surrender.

Perin told a story of 20 years of alleged persecution by his mother-in-law, in extenuation of his killing her at the Rawson house last Friday night. She opposed his marriage to her daughter, Deborah, he said, and, since the wedding, did everything she could to eliminate him.

Perin readily admitted the shooting, but showed an aversion to talk of the actual killing itself, confining his first explanations to what led up to the shooting, and what came after it.

"Our argument which preceded the shooting was about Nina Rawson's building an apartment house and turning it over to my wife to operate and take in university men as boarders," Perin said. "I objected to this, saying it would mean my wife, whose standing was above such work. Then they jumped all over me, and it all started."

Carried Poison Tablets. A search of Perin's pockets revealed that he had four poison tablets and $3.57.

"After the shooting it was terrible. I couldn't think. I was trying to get my mind together. I could have committed suicide if I wanted to. I had poison with me. But I had still enough sense not to try that."

Asked if he wanted any new clothes, Perin said he did not want them today. The funeral of Mrs. Rawson is set for this afternoon.

Perin said his wife and family would be occupied with preparing for and attending the funeral, and they had enough on their minds already. A formal charge of murder was lodged against Perin last Saturday.

Although still in a serious condition, Miss Nina Rawson was recovering today from three wounds inflicted by Perin.

WALSH TO FIGHT PLAN TO PROMOTE ADMIRAL ROBISON

Tells Democratic Committee He Will Insist on Test if Name Is Sent to Senate.

ROBISON APPROVED
NAVAL OIL LEASES

Fight Against Him Will Be Based on His Testimony Before the Senate Committee.

Post-Dispatch Bureau.

29-31 Wyatt Building.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 10.—Senator Thomas J. Walsh of Montana has served notice that if an attempt is made by President Coolidge to promote John K. Robison to Rear Admiral there will be a fight on him.

"If it be true that the President has put the stamp of his approval on the record of Admiral Robison or is about to do so by promoting him, subject to confirmation, to the rank of Rear Admiral on the permanent list, there will be a further airing of his part in the naval oil leases to Sinclair and Doherty, and a test before the Senate of how well he has earned such recognition."

This statement was made public by the Democratic National Committee yesterday. It came by wire from Walsh, who is now campaigning in Montana.

"It will be interesting," added Walsh, "to prosecute an inquiry into how it happened that he among all the eligibles in the navy, schooled in what he knew about the reserves by Doherty and himself with exactly the same ideas about them as those entertained by that gentleman, should have been selected to head the Bureau of Engineering, to which was intrusted the care of the reserves."

Approved Oil Leases. "Those interested will be reminded that he knew and approved of the transactions, notwithstanding the secrecy that attended them and the lack of competitive bidding; that he conceived the plan of circumventing Congress by stretching the power granted so as to permit paying for the tanks with oil—two barrels for one barrel of storage—and that he inaugurated the system without any knowledge as to whether it would be left to the navy in any kind of emergency.

"If President Coolidge, after reading the record, rewards Robison as it is said he will, there will be further food for thought."

There is no question about the President's attitude in this matter. He approved the recommendations of the Naval Selection Board that named Admiral Robison, with five others, June 14. All that remains for him to do to carry out the plan to promote him is to send the nomination to the Senate and get its approval.

Was Returned by Coolidge. Secretary Wilbur has explained that his approval of the Robison recommendation was a routine matter. It then went to the White House for consideration. The President returned the list as it went to him, which to the Selection Board means approval and it directs its future course accordingly.

The fight against Robison is to be based on his testimony before the Senate committee when Senator Walsh examined him closely as to his part in the leases.

Walsh asked Robison about the profits of other naval officers against turning the oil reserves over to the Interior Department. He questioned him particularly about Commanders Stuart and Shufroth, who were most emphatic in their opposition to the Fuel-Debt program.

"He wanted you to protect against the executive order?" Senator Walsh asked about Stuart.

Thought Proposition Correct. "I told him I didn't think it was proper. It was none of my business," answered Robison. "I was Captain in the navy. I told him he exaggerated the importance of my influence, and I thought the proposition he was opposing was correct."

Robison explained that nothing was done in the oil leasing matter without the approval of the Secretary of the Navy.

He argued the same and planned them," he declared. "There wasn't anything done except upon his advice."

Walsh asked him about the executive order of President Harding transferring the naval reserves to the Interior Department.

"Do you know whether this order was in the shape of a law or was merely an executive order?" Walsh asked.

"Approximately that way," Robison added. "I have been informed that the order was put in that shape."

ST. LOUIS POST-DISPATCH

ST. LOUIS, MONDAY EVENING, SEPTEMBER 29, 1924.

The Biography of John W. Davis
By THEODORE A. HUNTLEY.

Nominated for the Legislature Despite His Protests, He Was Elected and Won Statewide Attention by Ending Senatorial Deadlock.

Following is the twelfth instalment of the biography of John W.
Davis, which will appear in the Daily Post-Dispatch only.

CHAPTER XII.
(Copyright, 1924, by Duffell & Co., N. Y., Contemporary Statesmen.)

John W. Davis was 25
he had graduated in law, taught at Washington and Lee for a year and returned to Clarkburg to practice.

Harrison County had not elected a Democrat to the Legislature since the early '80s. In 1898, with the Republican organization split into two hostile factions, each striving for control, Democratic leaders concluded to make a fight, in the hope of redeeming the district. They settled upon two men to make the race, one of them Col. John C. Johnson, a shrewd and widely known political veteran, and the other the younger Davis.
When the older Davis learned of the program he sent for his son.
"John, don't let them do it," he said. "They are putting you up to be slaughtered. Besides, I want you to stick to the law and stay out of politics."

In deference to his parent's wishes the son announced that he would not become a candidate. The organization leaders, knowing they could control the convention nevertheless proceeded with their plans, regarding the state as the strongest that could be framed. In his brief period of practice John W. had made many friends, while managing to avoid the antagonisms of John J. With his growing reputation and wide acquaintance, he was considered doubly available. Accordingly it was agreed to rush the nominations through the convention without allowing opportunity for objection. Before the convention met, the program had been perfected to the last detail.

The session was short and spectacular. Col. James F. Allen, one of the authors of the scheme, was on his feet when the nominations were reached. Recognized by the chair, he moved that the candidates be nominated by acclamation.
With a yell the deed was done. The younger Davis meanwhile was willy waving his arms and shouting for recognition. His voice was drowned in the clamor as the delegates adjourned.

There was an interesting sequel.
The two nominees campaigned together. Johnson, who was more than twice the age of the younger man, sacrificed himself that his running mate might win. Figuring that Davis had the better chance, he would say to voters:

"If you want to vote for a Democrat, vote for John Davis instead of me."

When the ballots were counted it was found that Davis had won by a margin of several hundred votes, while Johnson had lost by less than 200.

Ended Deadlock in State Legislature.

On Jan. 11, 1899, the twenty-fourth session of the West Virginia Legislature was convened in Charleston. Interest was intense throughout the State, as a United States Senator was to be elected, and it was known that the vote would be close. On the face of the returns the Democrats had a bare majority in the House of Delegates and the Republicans a majority of one or two in the Senate. On joint ballot of the measures, the Democrats secured a majority in both houses the computation gave the Democrats a majority of one. This, however, was not final, as election contests involving several seats were pending in both houses. Committees were designated to hear the evidence in these disputes, and the usual political jockeying followed, with leaders of each party endeavoring to control the Legislature.

As the deadlock dragged on,
with neither side willing to yield, partisan feeling ran higher and higher. Principles were lost sight of and the contest degenerated into one of hatreds and personalities. A climax was reached when Edward Rucker, the Republican Attorney-General, was quoted in the newspapers as declaring he would "ride through the streets of Charleston in blood to his bride" before a Democrat should be sent to Washington as a United States Senator.

In this crisis Davis showed his mettle. At the outset of the session Owen S. McKinney of Marion County, who had been chosen Speaker, had appointed him chairman of the Judiciary Committee, and he had been elected to the position carried with it the Democratic floor leadership. In that capacity he, in common with some of the cooler heads of both House and Senate, representing Republican and Democratic parties alike, had been holding a series of conferences in an effort to reach an agreement. When Rucker hurled his bloody challenge, the Democratic members issued a statement of one sentiment which attracted statewide attention.

"West Virginia," he said, "can survive the election of another Republican Senator, but it cannot survive the destruction of orderly government which would attend a reign of riot and bloodshed."

Subsequently, he approved and helped persuade the Democratic majority in the House to accept a decision on the contested seats, which on joint ballot gave the Republicans a majority of one. John T. McGraw, Democratic candidate for the Senate, consented to this compromise, having received private assurances from a Republican Senator that he would switch his vote, thus giving him a majority. Unfortunately for McGraw, the Senator failed to keep his agreement, and Nathan B. Scott, the Republican candidate, was elected to the Senate.

Elected President of West Virginia Bar.

Davis emerged from the session, which lasted only six weeks, until Feb. 25, as one of its foremost figures. Speaker McKinney had been criticised earlier for naming so youthful a member as floor leader of the House. One of his most outspoken critics was C. C.
Watts, at that time United States District Attorney at Charleston.
McKinney counseled patience, confident that his judgment would be vindicated. At the close of the session, Watts, among others, came to him and retracted his earlier criticism, saying he thought Davis had made one of the best records of any leader in the State's history.

With this start, the young lawyer soon afterward stepped into political leadership in Harrison County, as his father's successor. In 1900, when 27, he was made chairman of the Democratic County Committee, and in 1904 served for the first time as a delegate to the national convention. Two years later his prestige took another bound with his election as president of the West Virginia Bar Association. Repeated attempts were made thereafter to persuade him to accept public office or to become a candidate, but he steady-ly refused, even when the nominations for Congress and the governorship were offered virtually without opposition. Politics remained a diversion, and he regarded himself first and last as a lawyer. Moreover, his father was aging, and he had become the active head of the law firm of Davis & Davis. Except for regular attendance at county, State and national conventions, he devoted himself to the law. It was not until 1910 that public service called with an insistence that could not be denied.

For many years, until 1916, West Virginia had regularly gone Republican. As the campaign of that year approached, Democratic leaders, regarding conditions as ripe for such a development, determined on a drive to carry the State. The Democrats had been overthrown in Washington. "Progressivism" was gaining ground. The political atmosphere was greatly disturbed.
More than for a decade past, the auguries were favorable to Democratic success. Accordingly, the party leaders determined to "Name your strongest men. If necessary, draft them."

Clem Shaver Had Been Watching His Career.

In the First Congressional District, comprising eight northwestern counties, settled by common consent on John W. Davis of Clarkburg to make the race for Congress. He was widely known, was popular, had been active in politics and possessed qualities which would make him a formidable candidate. In Marion County, Clem L. Shaver, the leader of the northern wing of the Democratic party, had been watching Davis for years and encouraged the movement to name him. It was generally agreed that he was the strongest man in sight, and it was felt that the one avowed candidate then in the field, Henry Zyllkin of Brooke County, could be induced to withdraw if Davis would make the fight.

But there was a hitch in the project. In Harrison County, John J. Davis was uncompromisingly opposed to his son's entry into politics as a candidate for office. John W. Davis, who was enjoying a lucrative practice, was equally emphatic in his refusal to run. The law firm of Davis & Davis was unanimously opposed to the disruption of its practice. One after another, the Harrison County delegates were called in and requested to abandon their activities and throw their support in the convention to some other candidate. A few of the more obtuse among them, undismayed by these instructions, doggedly went ahead with the plan to place the younger man in nomination.

One of the active sponsors of the movement was Dr. J. W. Johnston, the Davis family physician. On the eve of the departure of the Harrison County delegates for the convention, to be held in Wheeling, he was sent for by John J. Davis. Familiar with the tempestuous nature

STATE DEMOCRATS
TO SEEK $110,000
CAMPAIGN FUND

Former Gov. Gardner, as Finance Director, Advises Party Committee as to Needs.

$20,000 DEFICIT
TO BE MET FIRST

Decision Reached That Budget Will Be Prepared and Estimates Will Not Be Exceeded.

A fund of $110,000 is being sought by the Democrats for the Missouri campaign for the national and state Democratic tickets.

The executive and finance committees of the Democratic State Committee were advised of the estimated campaign needs by former Gov. Gardner at a meeting in the State headquarters in Hotel Jefferson yesterday. Gardner is Missouri Finance Director for the National Committee.

The Democrats enter the campaign with a deficit of approximately $20,000 remaining from a deficit of nearly $30,000 from the 1920 campaign. Of the funds which the party leaders hope to obtain it is the intention to wipe out this deficit and have $90,000 for current expenses, $60,000 for the State campaign and $30,000 for the national campaign.

Members of the executive committee from over the State, who attended the meeting, agreed that the solicitation of funds should be by one finance committee, that a budget should be prepared and that the budget estimates should not be exceeded.

Reports were given by the committee members as to political conditions in their communities and campaign plans were discussed in a general way. The actual work of the campaign will be handled by State Chairman Barbee and a corps of executives at headquarters with weekly conferences with the executive committee and the State committees.

Haves to Open Campaign for Congress Oct. 6.

Harry B. Haves, candidate on the Democratic ticket for re-election to Congress from the Eleventh District, will open his campaign at a meeting at the Odeon next Monday evening, Oct. 6.

This being the first meeting of the campaign in St. Louis, the Democratic National Committee has notified Haves that it will send two nationally known speakers, one a woman, to take part in the meeting. Their names will be announced later. A series of meetings in the district is being arranged by Haves.

Socialist Labor Vice Presidential Nominee to Speak Here.

Verne L. Reynolds, candidate for Vice President on the Socialist-Labor ticket, will speak in Eagles' Hall, Jefferson and Lafayette avenues at 8 o'clock Wednesday evening.

of the elder man and anticipating a scene, he went in fear and trembling to the Davis law office on Main street. There he found the two partners. The session was all he had expected. John J. was furious, the younger man quietly determined.

"You know I don't want John to enter politics," the elder Davis exploded. "Knowing how I feel, why do you persist in this plan to nominate him?"

"Because I think he's the best man we've got and the only one we can elect," Johnston retorted.

There were further words—many by John J., fewer by the physician.
At last Johnston declared:

"If you feel that way about it, I'll quit. There's no sense in going ahead."

John W. Davis, who had been silently listening to the argument, interrupted at this juncture.

"Come back to my office," he said.

Balked at Pleas to Accept Nomination.

Together he and Johnston walked to a rear room. Davis went to the safe and pulled out a cash book. Opening it for the other's inspection and pointing to the figures, he said:

"Here is what I made last year.
I can't afford to go to Congress. All this stops when I leave."

They talked it over at length, the physician arguing that the prestige of a term or two in Congress would more than compensate him for the loss of practice in this interval; the younger man insisting that it would be too great a sacrifice and that he had no desire to hold public office.
As they left for the night Johnston announced that in view of the attitude of father and son, he would remain in Clarkburg the following day instead of going to Wheeling.

THE UNITED STATES SHOULD BE ANY MORE SUCCESSFUL THIS TIME UN-LESS IT SUBSTANTIALLY MODIFIES ITS ATTITUDE TO EUROPE AND TO THE IDEA OF INTERNATIONAL CO-OPERA-TION.

In West Europe the question of disarmament can be tackled only on lines involving the settlement of great political and economic issues. Unless the United States is willing to discuss the question of interrelated debts, it is difficult to see what contribution America can make to the situation.

naval armaments (submarines, light cruisers, destroyers), as well as land and air armaments.

"The fact that the proposed conference in an item in the Republican electoral program means the United States is not likely to take the initiative before the presidential election in November, or if the Republicans are defeated, until the new administration comes in, in March, 1925.

"It is, of course, superfluous to argue about the immense influence of having the United States in a conference of this sort and the very fact of the Republican party having to 'eat' its own record on isolation and proposed conference for electoral purposes shows how far American opinion has evolved since 1920. Nevertheless, there are great difficulties.
For one thing, Congress has just turned up the question of Japan and scrapped the policy of cultivating friendship with Japan, imagined by the Lansing-Ishii agreement and culminating in the Washington naval conference.

Effect of Japanese Exclusion.

"It is a fact not sufficiently realized in Europe that the exclusion of Japanese immigrants, just voted by Congress, has undone the work of 20 years, and is felt as a bitter and scathing insult by Japanese public opinion. So strong is the feeling that the Japanese Ambassador in Washington is going home, and it is extremely unlikely Japan would consent to go to a disarmament conference summoned by the United States. And yet without Japan, no agreement on naval armaments is possible.

"The second difficulty is that air and land armament in Europe are purely European questions, depending on local political conditions.
France is armed because she fears Germany; the new states in East Europe arm for fear of their neighbors or each other, or both; Russia arms because she is an outlaw state. That is, armaments are based on policy, and disarmament involves settling political problems.

"The Washington naval conference succeeded because it recognized that fact and so solved outstanding disputes over China and concluded the four-power mediation convention as part of the process of reducing naval armaments.

Clashed Anonymously.

The memorandum was circulated anonymously. Its authorship could not be openly avowed because of the anxiety to prevent controvery between the American and other views of a disarmament conference. It enjoyed a wide circulation in the part taken in league activities by Americans, and added:
"Neither in Europe nor America is it generally realized how far the United States has already crept into the league."

"On the other hand, the disarmament conference between Russia and the border states and the Rome naval conference failed because they all failed to deal with armaments as a purely technical problem. The agreement on limiting capital ships reached in Washington was relatively simple, for it was concluded between three—or at most five—states on the basis of a status quo and did not necessitate discussions on European politics.

All European Questions Involved.

"A limitation on air, land and auxiliary naval armaments would, however, mean a conference of practically all nations and directly involve all the greatest questions of European policy. It was for this reason that the Washington conference failed when it attempted to deal with this further aspect of disarmament, and it is difficult to see why the United States should be any more successful this time unless it substantially modifies its attitude to Europe and to the idea of international co-operation.

To take two examples: Mr. Mac-Donald has already stated he is not prepared to discuss security and disarmament until the question of reparations is settled, because the amount and kind of security required depend on the nature of the reparations settlement.

"But a final settlement includes fixing the amount Germany is to pay, and this again means raising the question of interrelated debts.

"The new French Government is believed to be willing to reduce armaments and substitute international guarantees of security through the league for the occupation of the Ruhr. This means some form of agreement based on the principles of the draft treaty of mutual assistance and demilitar-

DEMOCRATS REPLY TO MELLON ON ALUMINUM LEVY

Senator Simmons Asks Why Tariff Was Raised if It Does Not Affect Price.

SAYS MELLON DODGED MONOPOLY FACTS

Declares One Company
Controls Output of Raw Material, and Cites Committee Testimony.

Post-Dispatch Bureau.
20-23 Wyatt Building.
WASHINGTON, Sept. 29.—Senator of the Treasury Mellon's defense of the Aluminum Co. of America, and denied that it is a monopoly or that it has benefited by the high tariff it was awarded by the Republican Congress has provoked emphatic dissent among leading Democratic authorities on tariff.

Senator Simmons of North Carolina, chairman of the Senate Finance Committee for eight years under the Wilson administration, called Mellon's statements "ridiculous."

"There never has been a plainer, tighter monopoly in the industrial history of the United States," the Senator declared yesterday. "Of course, Secretary Mellon, whose family is one of the most richly interested financially, denies it is a monopoly. They have been denying it for years, but if this is not a monopoly, then the word is without meaning."

"It is clear that the tariff has had little effect on the price of aluminum," Simmons observed that "it is strange then that the aluminum company was so desperately in earnest about getting the tariff rates it demanded."

Controls Raw Material.

"This one company controls the whole output of the raw material," Senator Simmons emphasized.
"They do not want to pay for it.
It is indispensable. Independent concerns have to buy their raw material from this one company. The testimony before Senate and House committees has shown that beyond doubt they control the output of aluminum. There is no justification in the world for these tariffs on aluminum. To say they are 'protective' when this company dominates the entire industry is nonsense."

He pointed out also that Secretary Mellon's defense, made in answer to John W. Davis and the New York World, asserts in its breath that "the tariff has had little effect on the price of aluminum." Mellon's statement, he said, next breath that "the tariff has not been in effect the 35,000 people in the aluminum industry would be without jobs or would have to work for much lower wages."

Also the Senator noted that Mellon avoided all the facts relative to the monopolistic side of the question and merely stated flatly that "no monopoly in the aluminum industry exists." The fact that the Aluminum Co. in which the Mellon family made its fortune, paid dividends of 40 per cent last year, after raising prices as much as 10 cents a pound under the tariff award, was a fact which Mellon, the Senator pointed out.
Similarly, Mellon avoided mention of the fact, the Senator added, that the Aluminum company exclusively controls the raw material (bauxite) and yet, contrary to the principle followed since the inception of tariffs, succeeded in having the raw material removed from the free list and placed under high duties, no longer by the Mellon family, but by the Aluminum Company's rates became extortionate.

Lead Pipe Clinch Monopoly.

In the opinion of Senator Jones of New Mexico, who specialized on the study of the aluminum industry, "the aluminum business of the United States is as near a lead pipe clinch monopoly as can be found," and "There is no reason on earth for a tariff on aluminum."

Senator Jones characterized the Aluminum company's tariff benefits, when the bill was pending, as a defiance of all principles. "A more monstrous proposition has not been presented to the Senate," he said. "To protect the product of such a monopoly is absolutely indefensible."

He referred especially to the rate of 15 cents a pound, plus 60 per cent ad valorem imposed upon aluminum wire for household and hospital uses. This rate, he said, all records.

Senator King of Utah, who also fought the Aluminum company's demands, said that the company "by common consent is dominated by the Aluminum Trust."

The Democratic authorities were surprised at the obvious loophole in Mellon's defense, not only in his avoidance of pertinent facts, but his citing of rates and prices.
Prices to the public rose from 21 to 25 cents a pound in 1924, increased by the increase in the tariff from 2 to 3 cents a pound.

THE AUTOBIOGRAPHY OF JOHN W. DAVIS

with the other delegates, as he had planned. Early the next morning the telephone rang. It was the younger Davis. The message was brief: "Come down to the office."

Five minutes later the physician climbed the stairs to the second floor suite of Davis & Davis. "See here," the lawyer greeted him, "if you don't go to Wheeling, I won't."

"Why should I go?" Johnston demanded. "You've got me tied up. I can't do anything."

"You've got to go anyway," John W. insisted.

When the westbound train left Clarksburg at noon the two were among the passengers, along with others of the Harrison County delegation. At Wheeling the leaders from other counties awaited them, and the Windsor Hotel was blue with the smoke of many stogies. The talk was all Davis. After dinner that night the Harrison County delegates gathered in the room shared by Davis and J. Carl Vance, his cousin and closest chum. About 9 o'clock Shaver arrived and went up to the room. Nelson Hubbard of Ohio County joined them. While the leaders conferred, a delegation of Republicans from Ohio County sent a message to the conference saying that if Davis were nominated they would get out and fight for him and guarantee a majority in that county. A little later a similar message came from a committee of Republicans from Marshall County.

From 8 o'clock until 4 the next morning the conference debated behind locked doors the course to be pursued when the convention met. Davis was turned out into the hall while they argued.

At intervals Johnston would go to him with a message or question, or attempt to persuade him to acquiesce in the plan to nominate him. At 4 a. m. Davis, pacing the hall outside, said to the physician:

"Doc, if it weren't for one thing I wouldn't consider it for a moment. I'm afraid that if I don't take it they'll say I laid down on my friends. I don't want any man to ever say that of me."

Johnston returned to the room where the delegates were conferring and reported the remark. Some of those present construed it to mean that by nominating him he could be forced to run. Finally John J. Nolan, one of the participants, proposed that Davis' name be placed before the convention. It was so agreed all around. As the haggard leaders left, they encountered Davis and informed him of the decision.

"I won't run," he protested. "I'll decline the nomination."

"You can do as you please," he was told. "That's what's going to happen."

Zylikin had gone to bed. "Nels" Hubbard volunteered to wake him and tell him he had to withdraw.

"Not only that," said Hubbard. "I'll tell him he's got to place John W. in nomination."

The cold-blooded errand was well performed. Zylikin bowed to the will of the organization. When the convention met at 11 o'clock that morning he launched into a lengthy nomination speech. Davis, sitting among the delegates, was observed to grow increasingly restless and appeared to be on the point of interrupting. Anticipating his purpose, the leaders shifted their plans. Zylikin never finished. A voice yelled from the floor:

"I move that John W. Davis be nominated by acclamation!"

History repeating itself, after a 17-year interval. The delegates howled their approval. Davis jumped to his feet, but before he could speak he had been nominated. Shaver supplied the push that put him over.

A committee was named to escort him to the platform. Zylikin, Hubbard and Robinson, with one or two others, became the escort. It was a curious procession. With two men pushing and two others holding his arms, he was shoved and dragged to the stage.

"Now, damn you," one of them muttered. "Accept this nomination!"

Reluctantly he did so. Weeks later two telegrams signed by John J. Davis were placed in his hands.

One was a reply to a message he had sent his father the night before the nomination asking his advice. It read as follows:

"Do not yield to solicitations. Stand firm on declination."

A second message, filed at Clarksburg at 11:45 a. m. on the day of the convention, read:

"Say 'no' and be firm."

Both telegrams had been delivered to the convention hall. Ignatius Brecken, a loyal friend and admirer, received for them and stuck them in his pocket. The originals hang in the Lee street house in Clarksburg. Their author lived to applaud that day's events.

A crowd of thousands awaited the nominee when he returned that night from Wheeling. Mounting the Courthouse steps, he addressed the cheering throng, pledging his utmost efforts to win in the coming election. As he finished speaking he glanced across the street. There, leaning against a telephone pole, taking in the scene, he saw the head of the firm. On the near side of the street, back to the elder man, stood Dr. Johnston. Descending the steps, Davis seized the physician by the arm, saying as they started across:

"You got me into this. Now you've got to face the music."

Johnston balked, but it was too late. They confronted John J. together. The old man's eyes flamed and his whole figure seemed to lengthen. The white beard trembled; the long forefinger shook threateningly beneath the physician's nose.

"You're a kydidd!" he blazed. "Next morning Dr. Johnston was surprised to see the elder Davis walking over from the Postoffice an hour earlier than usual. As they met, the lawyer nodded.

"Come up to the office," he said. "With lagged steps, uncertain of what was coming, the physician climbed the stairs and faced his patient."

"Doctor," the old man said. "I couldn't sleep last night. What I said to you sat on my conscience. It worried me all night long. I offer you my apology. I hope you will accept it."

Johnston could not reply. In the following November John W. Davis was elected to Congress by a plurality which reversed the normal result in the First Congressional District, receiving 29,276 votes to 16,942 for Charles E. Carignan, the Republican incumbent, a candidate for re-election.

It was the turn of the road. The outcome altered the entire course of his life.

nite final form by the Assistant Secretary of the Navy.

Robison suggested plan. The records show how Admiral Robison suggested the plan that enabled the navy to sell its oil to Sinclair and Doherty for "certificates," and that he had the navy go through the formality of calling for bids for the Pearl Harbor tanks for storage. Doherty submitted one, but later another secret bid, in which he agreed to do the work for $225,000 less if given preferential rights to get a lease of the California naval oil reserves.

He got the contract for Pearl Harbor. Time went on and suddenly Secretary Fall complained that the navy did not have enough oil—or certificates—to pay Doherty for all the work he had done. Giving this as his reason, Fall made the secret contract of Dec. 11, 1922, with Doherty, giving him all the naval Reserve No. 1 in California. The details of these transactions were developed by Walsh.

By the Associated Press.
SHANGHAI, Sept. 19.—The battle lines of the armies in the sector west of Shanghai were extended this morning to include the entire area from the Hangchow-Shanghai railway north to the Yangtze River.

After a reported transfer of reinforcing troops from Tientsin, about 20 miles southwest of Shanghai, the Kiangsu forces attacked near the defending lines in the vicinity of Hwangtu and Lihuo.

The Chekiang headquarters asserts that in the resultant fighting the defending armies not only held their lines at the points at which the attacks were directed but made important gains near Kiating, at the middle of the battle front.

Both invading and defending forces suffered heavy casualties. Lungwha headquarters of the Chekiang army reported early today that the present attack on the Kiangsu forces had resulted in the complete removal of the dangerous indentation of the Chekiang line between Kiating and Malin. Fighting still proceeds. Hundreds of Chinese soldiers were killed and many others wounded this morning on a six-mile front from Nanhsan to Malin when armies of rival military governors fighting for possession of Shanghai continued hostilities with impetuous intensity.

Both sides use Shrapnel. According to a witness who has returned after traversing the sector from Nanhsan to Malin, west of Shanghai, both sides were drenching the lines with shrapnel.

Numerous relief stations behind the six-mile Nanhsan front were filled with wounded, while scores of others were arriving on stretchers.

The dead have been left where they fell, according to the witness, and this practice has resulted in a carnage odor extending over the whole battle area.

The offensive, which has resulted in continuous firing since it opened on Saturday morning, has enabled the Chekiang forces to drive the Kiangsu troops back several miles, according to Gen. Hsia Chang-Lin, commander of the Chekiang forces in the center of activity.

The heaviest fighting was just outside the village of Malin. The besting Kiangsu soldiers were entrenched two or three miles to the westward. Artillery, machine guns and rifles joined in a continuous volume of firing, indicating that the Kiangsu counterattack was in progress. The Chekiang forces were reported to remain on the defensive.

The rock-filled roadway from Nanhsan northward to Malin, held in procession of touring cars equipped with caterpillar chains to the rear wheels, bringing the Chekiang army munitions and additional three-inch guns. Meanwhile there was a steady march of Red Cross attaches carrying stretchers to the other direction. They plodded their sing-song way through the rain, with the women's aid supported on bamboo poles held on the shoulders of the first aid men.

Son of Dr. Sun in Shanghai. General Li Lih-Chun, the right-hand man of Dr. Sun Yat-sen, head of the Canton government, arrived in Shanghai today, accompanied by the latter's son, Sun Fu. General Li was proceeding to Japan on a diplomatic mission, but was being urged to remain here to assist the Chekiang faction in its war against allies of the Peking government.

DESTRUCTIVE LENINGRAD FLOOD MAKES THOUSANDS OF PEOPLE HOMELESS

Waters Almost Reach Mark of 1824—All Factions Join Without Disorder in Work of Restoration.

Special Cable to the Post-Dispatch and the Chicago Daily News (Copyright, 1924)

LENINGRAD, Russia, Sept. 29.—
The authorities of Leningrad deserve the highest praise for the way in which they met and fought the great flood which devastated the city. Officials acted with the greatest energy, taking measures systematically and rapidly to meet the situation. People of every class rose to the occasion and all worked with the utmost good will.
There was no violence, no rioting and no robbery. In saying this the correspondent repeats not alone his own views but the unanimous verdict of every foreign diplomatic official here.

Outside the winter palace there stands a historic place marking the height reached by the great inundation of Nov. 7, 1824, which ranked among the greatest of its kind in history. On that occasion several thousand persons were drowned and whole districts were swept away. The recent inundation reached within a very short space of the high water mark on the same place, but the casualties on this occasion were trivial compared with those at that time. The present stone houses stood firm, but in the matter of material loss 1824 makes 1824 sink into insignificance.

Blows in From the Sea.
In view of the fact that many of the first details reaching Moscow were inaccurate, the correspondent will tell the story as recounted to him by many friends here. A heavy storm blowing inward from the sea swept over Leningrad on last Tuesday. Between 8 and 4 p.
m. the waters in the Neva and the canals began to overflow their banks and pour into the basements of the houses. Soon the basements were full and then the water began to cover the ground floors.
Finally on the north side of the city reaching the first floors above the street level. Electric light and power were cut off and telephones were made useless.

The flood mounted so quickly that people who crossed the Nev-ski Prospekt to make inquiries found themselves a few minutes later unable to return. Street cars and automobiles caught in the streets in many cases had to be abandoned where they stood.
Small ships and boats on the river and barges in the canals came drifting and crashing landward.
The pavements of whole streets rose with the tide, floating about and caving in the seething waters like rudderless rafts until they were smashed apart. The pavements in many of the streets of Leningrad resemble rafts upon marshy foundations. They are first made of great cross beams, then planks are laid across and hexagonal wooden blocks fitted on them.

Trees Are Torn Up.
The wind continued to increase until many trees were torn up by the roots while others were twisted asunder. The action of the wind was strangely capricious.
One sees on one side of a roadway every tree torn up or aslant, while on the other the trees are untouched.

People on the lower floors tried to save their property, but they could do little. Men and women gathered on the upper floors wondering, praying and fearing.
Some declared a judgment of God on their city and some flung themselves before the icons. The darkness was now complete. The howling of the winds, the crashing of timbers, the breaking of glass and the swilling of the waters gave the final touches of horror. Everyone feared the buildings must collapse by the wholesale under the weight of the water.

Hours of Anxiety.
Hour after hour of black anxiety followed. By 9 o'clock the waters were 10.8 feet above the canal level and many men hesitated before plunging into the waters, knowing that with a few inches more the houses might go, unable longer to stand the strain. Then the break came. The wind began to die down and the waters to abate almost as suddenly as they had arisen. Leningrad was saved. By 5 o'clock in the morning the wind sank to light breezes. By 10 o'clock the waters were only a little above the canal level, the clouds had vanished and there was brilliant sunshine overhead. The destruction in the streets told its own tale.

The whole city, with the exception of the district around the Nicolai station, has been covered with many feet of water. The industrial district on Vasilevski-Ostrov Island, where the factories are situated, suffered the most. The ethnographic section of the Russian Museum was entirely flooded and many animals in the zoo were drowned. Bridges were swept away and all the main streets were impassable owing to the quantity of wreckage. Theaters are so damaged that they will have to be closed for three weeks.

Martial law was declared on Wednesday morning and the city was placed under a triumvirate composed of Sedorov, the Town Commissioner; Leonov, Vice Chief of the Gapsyov, and Lym, Vice Chief of the Advisory Board of the General Executive Committee. The triumvirate issued several decrees.
Every person was ordered to clear the street in front of his house before clearing his own room.
Every provision shop was ordered to reopen and remain open until midnight, it being forbidden under heavy penalty to raise prices.

All Orders Obeyed.
These orders were strictly obeyed. Proletarians, bourgeoisie, communists and ancient aristocrats worked together with the eagerness of the volunteers, pumping out basements, collecting the wood blocks which had floated everywhere, and generally cleaning up the city. The public order was so good that it was possible to end martial law on Thursday evening.
The Council of Labor Defense of Moscow is pouring in foodstuffs intended for the capital city.

While the people are engaged in clearing the roadways armies of men have been enrolled to repair the electric lines, relay the conduits and replace the bridges. The results are almost magical. Many of the bridges already have been replaced, and the water supply, which was cut off in many areas, is being renewed. For instance, the correspondent's hotel was without light, water or telephone service in the evening, and the next morning the water was running.

MADE TRIP ON COT IN AUTO TRUCK TO OLD HOME

Arthur E. Rump, Bedridden for 22 Years, Back From Visit at Troy, Ill.

Arthur E. Rump, St. Louis' champion optimist, was back at his home, at 6423 Columbia, today, recalling his happy visit to his old home at Troy, Ill., Saturday, where he was greeted by several hundred old friends.

Rump, who has been bedridden 22 years, since an accident suffered while working in the St. Louis Postoffice, made the trip on a cot in a truck, accompanied by his nurse. The party made frequent stops, passing through St. Clair and Madison counties, to be greeted by friends, and found a large number awaiting him upon his arrival at a friend's house in Troy. He spent the evening and night at the friend's house, returning to St. Louis yesterday.

Despite his invalidism, Rump has broken his cheerfulness, not his independence, and makes his own living by selling magazine subscriptions over a telephone from his bed. In 1922 Congress passed a bill, which was signed by President Harding, awarding the former postal employee a pension of $60 a month, after a lengthy presentation of his case before congressional committees and Government departments.

DEATH OF VETERAN TRADER Henry Hentz Was One of the Fourners of Cotton Exchange.

By the Associated Press.
NEW YORK, Sept. 29.—The death of Henry Hentz, last surviving charter member of the New York Cotton Exchange, at his home in Madison, N. J., in his ninetieth year, was announced today. For more than half a century he had been an outstanding figure in the cotton trade in America.

Hentz was president of the Cotton Exchange from 1874 to 1876. In 1858 he founded the firm of H. Hentz & Co. He sailed on the brig Jefferson Davis, the first war vessel owned by the Southern Confederacy. Two sons and two daughters survive.

telephone service had been renewed and electric light assured.
Even now the total extent of the damage can only be roughly estimated. Probably worst of all will be the washing away of the marshy foundations of houses already threatened with collapse. Six months ago 1000 blocks of houses were marked as unsafe. This damage will only fully reveal itself later. During the last year the city authorities have been engaged in the titanic task of renovating the town and repairing the havoc of years of revolutionary struggle. They relaid the streets, making the Nevski Prospekt, which, until recently, was in bad shape, better than it was in pre-war days. They restored the threatened houses and relayed their foundations. All this work has been swept away.

NEGROES VAINLY TRY TO SEE COOLIDGE

Delegation From Indiana, Ohio and Maryland Wants to Question Him About Ku Klux.

Post-Dispatch Bureau.
WASHINGTON, Sept. 29.—Indignation among negro leaders at the Coolidge administration was increased today by word that the President, through Secretary Slomp, had refused to meet a delegation from Indiana, Ohio and Maryland which wanted to learn his position on matters affecting the negro race, including the Ku Klux Klan.

An appointment with President Coolidge was requested on behalf of the delegation more than a week ago. Secretary Slomp told local negro leaders acting for the delegation that Mr. Coolidge's schedule was filled but that he would call by telephone and assign a time later.

Saturday Slomp was questioned by four negro employees of the Government, who wished to protest to the President against segregation in the department, as shown by the letter of Frank White, treasurer of the United States, ignoring his negro subordinates in his defense day order.

Unable to see the President they left a memorial which Slomp said he would call to Mr. Coolidge's attention. They reported "to negroes interested in drawing out the President on the race question, that Slomp had told them he saw no possibility of granting them an interview at some later time."

Meanwhile no date has been assigned the delegation, from the three doubtful states, and Slomp who is charged with using his influence against the negroes because of sympathies with the "holy white" Republican faction in the South, has sought, it is declared, to ascertain in advance the subject matter that might be discussed.

The delegation had in mind to find Mr. Coolidge's leanings on the Ku Klux segregation, and the alleged discrimination of the Civil Service Commission against negroes.

fore running up on the sidewalk and injuring the boys.

The injured boys, taken to city hospital, were: Elroy Rutkowski, 13, of 4019 Cote Brillante avenue, fractured skull and internal injurbile driven by Wilder Hume, 15, of 3904 Enright avenue. He suffered a fractured skull and right arm, suffering a fracture of the collar bone and possible internal injuries. McLean was bruised.

Charles Willenberg, 16, of 1735 South Eighteenth street, suffered a fractured left arm and severe scalp wounds when a bicycle he was riding was crowded by an automobile into a southbound Grand boulevard car near Shaw avenue.

Miss Lena Schwake, 45 years old, of 3649 South Broadway, crossing the street in front of her home, shortly before midnight, was struck by a motorcycle driven by Albert Brown, 18, of 3641 Wisconsin avenue, suffering a fracture of the left leg and concussion of the brain.

WHEELER SPEAKS IN PULPIT

By the Associated Press.
DENVER, Colo., Sept. 29.—Senator Wheeler, independent vice presidential candidate, varied his campaign routine on arriving in Denver yesterday, to the extent of occupying a church pulpit in the evening. He dealt only indirectly with political topics in the address, delivered at the Grace Community Church, but declared that he had found on a recent trip in Europe that countries there, after many years of semimonarchic and militaristic government, were turning to leadership representing their agricultural and working populations in order to obtain better prospect for peace and social justice.

He likewise pleaded for law enforcement in the United States and repeated a campaign mention of Treasury Secretary Mellon as "having been 40 years in the whitey business," but, notwithstanding, being now in control of Federal prohibition enforcement.

FRISCH AND GROH, GIANT STARS, TO PLAY IN WORLD'S SERIES

McGraw Will Have All His Regulars in Line For Championship Tilts

First Game Will Be Played at Washington, Saturday, Unless Yankees Come Along and Tie Senators in A. L. Pennant Struggle.

NEW YORK, Sept. 29.—Captain Frank Frisch and Heinie Groh, two of the Giant stars missing in the team's final drive to clinch the championship in the National League, will be ready to play in the first game of the world's series, it was announced here today. Frisch and Groh missed the three important clashes with the Pirates, in which the McGrawmen put the Corsairs out of the running and practically eliminated Brooklyn.

With Frisch and Groh recovering from their injuries and getting back into the batting order, three regulars, Lindstrom at third base, Jimmy O'Connell, the $75,000 "hot" who played center and Terry, at first base, will go back to the bench for the battles with the American League entry, scheduled to start in the A. L. city, Saturday. Lindstrom and Terry were two of the stars for the club in the game last Saturday, which won for John McGraw his fourth successive pennant.

When the Giants take the field in the opening game Saturday, the chances are that there will be but few changes in the Giants' batting order over the one that lost the world's title to the Yankees a year ago. One switch will show "Hack" Wisen in center field, instead of Casy Stengel, who labored in the mudlows last season, but since has moved on to Boston. Then Travis Jackson will be at short instead of Dave Bancroft, now manager of the Braves.

Nehf and Bentley Best. McGraw's two best pitching bets will be the southpaws, Art Nehf and Jack Bentley. Nehf has been hurt by a bad back and is one of the five leading pitchers in the major leagues. Bentley also has been hurt by a bad back and is one of the five leading pitchers in the major leagues.

McGraw's team, unless all signs fall will take the field as follows in the opening game of the series: Nehf, first base; Frisch, second base; Jackson, shortstop; Groh, third base; Young, right field; Wilson, center field; Menke, left field; Sawyer and Gowdy doing the catching. In addition to Nehf and Bentley, McGraw has McCullin, Brown, and other right-handers to call upon to do the pitching.

With the Giants officially closing the National League season today, McGraw will spend the remainder of the week sending his charges through practice sessions to get them in top-top condition for the coming world's series.

If Washington gets into the series, and this now seems certain, "Hack" Harris will have in his regular batting order but one player who has had previous experience in a world's series. This athlete is Roger Peckinpaugh, the veteran shortstop, who has been one of the main cogs in the defense of the club all season. Peck played with the Yankees a few years ago in the title contests with the Giants.

A Washington victory will give St. Louis a player in the clash, the person of Harold "Muddy" Ruel, catcher, who is now regarded as one of the best in the American League.

Famous Winning Football Plays

TAD JONES' YALE SHORT END RUN.

Winning Plays—No. 2. This is Yale's most consistent ground-gaining play. Where the backs are well versed in blocking, the ball should be carried into the secondary defense before the play is blocked. It is a simple formation but very effective.

The opposing left tackle is blocked by the end and No. 4 Back. No. 2 and 3 Backs take care of the opposing left end. Right guard, No. 5 in the accompanying diagram, leaves his position in the line to lead the interference.

The other linemen check their opponents and then go through to block the secondary defense. The ball comes to No. 1 Back on a direct pass. He starts out laterally until about off tackle and then cuts sharply, his path having been effectively cleared by the interference.

No. 5, right guard, should whenever possible block the defensive back from the outside. This will give the runner a greater chance to gain ground. Yale is particularly noted for its rushing plays. Once past the short end run becomes very effective. As Tad Jones defines it, the short-end run depends upon the ability of the interference to block the opponents and the skill of the runner to take advantage of his opening.

As Coach Jones further explains his short end run is dependable whenever a short gain is very necessary.

GIANTS PLAN TO WORK AT SENATORS' PARK Special to the Post-Dispatch. NEW YORK, Sept. 29.—In the event that Washington clinches its hold on the American League pennant in the two remaining days of the race, it is the plan of John McGraw to take his Giants to the National Capital on Friday in order to give his men a full afternoon's practice at the Senators' park before the series opener there on Saturday. If the Senators win the pennant it is likely they will make use of the Polo Grounds for practice on Thursday, it is said.

In order to keep the Giants on playing edge, McGraw will take his champions to New Haven tomorrow for an exhibition game with the Eastern League club of that city. The following day the Giants will entertain the inmates of Sing Sing. It is possible that the Giants may play Waterbury, champions of the Eastern League on Thursday at Waterbury.

Kenny Williams will manage the Browns' barnstormers. Composing Williams' team will be Wingard, Vangilder, Davis, Danforth, Keverdell, Collins, McManus, Gerber, Robertson and Jacobson.

Brownies' Final Game Canceled Special to the Post-Dispatch. CLEVELAND, O., Sept. 29.—Although no Sunday game had been postponed because of rain in the past nine years here, the Browns and Indians were prevented from playing the final game of their schedule yesterday, when an all-day drizzle made a cancellation necessary. It was the second Sunday postponement in 14 years. During that span of years not a holiday game was lost at the Cleveland Field.

A team of Brownie barnstormers will leave here immediately for Lima, O., for the first game of a series of one-night stops. The second game is scheduled at Milwaukee, where the St. Louis players will oppose a group of Cleveland Indians, touring under Pat McNulty.

Layton's Billiard Schedule. The week's schedule in the handi-cap pocket billiard tournament at Layton's parlors is as follows: Today—Huether vs. Shedd. Wednesday—Adams vs. Pollard. Thursday—Friedland vs. Rickley. Friday—Schlenk vs. Layton. Tonight at Mueller's parlors, Tuesday at Layton's, special handi-cap, pocket match, Layton playing for Mueller's 200.

Billikens Facing Shortage of Subs, as West Point Game Nears

Only Three Backfield Extras Available for Game With Powerful Army Eleven Saturday and One of This Trio Has Dislocated Shoulder.

St. Louis University football squad began preparations today for the game with Army which will be played at West Point, Saturday. Head Coach Savage faces one of the hardest problems he has ever confronted. He must, with a squad that has not yet numbered more than 20, oppose one of the country's top rank teams, perhaps the finest conditioned team in football—a hard, powerful and crushing eleven. He will be forced to use against the Cadets' all-America talent, many of them with three years' college experience, an eleven made up of heroes unknown and unsung—several of high school age. The main Billiken weakness is a Garbick although the latter is an all-America choice.

Saturday's 8-0 victory over Springfield Normal, while not impressive in cold figures, was satisfying to Savage. The team played raggedly at times but exhibited a powerful drive on offense and a defense that held the Teachers to one first down. And the visitors were rather a strong aggregation.

Straight Football to Be Used. On the offense the Billikens are quick on the getway and every man back of the line is capable of lots of speed. They employ virtually no shifts, but confer before every play and use criss-cross and multiple short-pass formations frequently.

Savage will probably discard the last named maneuvers together with all trick plays as the Army squad is made up mostly of veterans who have the faculty of "smelling" disguised movements. It is also probable that on offense the Mound Cityans will do most of their work from open formations as the players will be severely battered by the relentless line-smashing of the cadets. Here again the problem of substitutes comes in.

On the defense, Savage's men rather surprised the crowd Saturday. The line charged fiercely and smothered many plays. Hannagan's work at center stood out encouragingly and there will be little worry over his ability to stand up against the final event on the program. The St. Louis team won this match in straight sets, 6-4, 6-3.

Backfield Subs Few. The backfield is in worse case than any other department. When Savage has McKensie, O'Reilly, Hannacott and Mahoney on the field he has only Karst, Fischer and McCarty in reserve; and McCarty's dislocated shoulder, which was aggravated Saturday, may keep him out for a while. Thus he may, in the case of injuries to his fleet backs, have to call Hannagan back from center to fill in the gap and put Stampfli, Harlow or Broghamer in his place.

Final Event on the Program. The St. Louis team won this match in straight sets, 6-4, 6-3.

Frenchmen Beat Local Net Stars Both Singles Matches but Lose in Doubles. By Davison Ohear. A crowd estimated at 800 persons witnessed the exhibition matches between the French tennis stars and two local players at the Triple A Club, yesterday afternoon. The program consisted of two singles contests followed by a doubles match.

Jacques Brugnon of France opposed Wray Brown, holder of the St. Louis District title, in the first match of the afternoon. Although Brugnon won in straight sets there were a number of good rallies during the contest. Brown made a very good showing against the French player and on several occasions had a one-game lead. Brugnon was better in cross-court placements, which enabled him to win.

Another Frenchman, Jean Borotra, won the second match, 6-4, 6-3, over a local player. The Frenchmen won both singles matches but lost in the doubles.

BIG EASTERN ELEVEN'S OPEN SEASON SATURDAY

By the Associated Press. NEW YORK, Sept. 29.—With the first contact games out of the way, teams which opened their football season last Saturday graduate to stiffer competition on this weekend when a group of battle-hardened teams will meet in the real competitive opening on Eastern fields.

Pittsburg and Lafayette meet in the first important elimination of the season. Yale, Harvard, Penn State and Army have intercollegiate contests, respectively, with North Carolina, Virginia, North Carolina State and St. Louis. Dartmouth and McGill clash at Hanover in an international match.

Large crowds at the opening contests presaged a healthy interest in the sport despite counter attractions of baseball, racing and golf. The largest colleges had early times with their first opponents, but Pittsburg, Lafayette and West Virginia and Rutgers were held to small scores and Bucknell, Charles Moran's new coaching field, squeaked through with a 5-0 victory over Western Maryland.

Line Is Satisfactory. The line all the way across is fairly heavy. Besides Hannagan, the guards are all powerful men. Klansner is big with broad underpinning. Krug is moderately heavy, though not in very good condition; Clark weighs about with Krug and Higt is fast and earnest, in addition to being well-built. A noticeable feature of Saturday's contest was Higt's getting down under punts before the ends, in which position he played last year.

At tackle Schwartz stands out. He is a veteran of several campaigns and a veritable "iron man" though of medium weight. Sullivan and Carlson, two of the heaviest men on the forward wall, looked good against the Teachers. Sullivan exhibiting an aggressiveness that has not been evident in practice. Carlson is perhaps the heaviest man on the squad and a willing student who should be a great strength to the line. Simon is the remaining member of this department. The ends have not been worrying Savage much, as Kahle, Amarel, O'Toole, Stanton, Sweeney and Bromberg take good care of the wings.

Vacation days are over and the hot spell has broken. The weather bureau tells us that the summer of 1924 brought to the South more intense heat and a longer heated period than any in years. How did you stand it? Did the railroads help? Were you made more comfortable by the transportation systems of the country?

Did you have a vacation trip to a cooler climate, or did you weather the weather in the comforts of your own home? In either event, the railroads played an important part—as they do every month in the year—in adding to your comfort.

Milk, fresh vegetables, fruits, melons—the principal items of summer diet—would have been impossible to secure or prohibitive in price, but for the railroads.

As we enter the period of Fall activities, with the great crop movement just commencing, the opportunity is afforded the American citizen to look both forward and backward at the task which is being so capably accomplished by the railroads.

Shall the good work go on; unhampered by destructive legislation, which in practically every instance is fostered by persons entirely unfamiliar with transportation problems?

Now! Whiten Cloudy Teeth

Under that film on your teeth (run your tongue across your teeth and you can feel it) are the clean, glistening teeth you envy. Combat it this way—see what pretty teeth you have.

In the United States today, it is estimated that over half a million people a day are cleaning their teeth in a new way. These are people who used to have dull and dingy teeth. That is why you see gleaming teeth wherever your eyes turn.

Now leading dentists tell how to clear up dingy teeth. A method that supplants old type dentifrices—combats, without harsh grit, the stubborn film that covers teeth and makes them ugly.

Run your tongue across your teeth. You will feel that film. Under it are the prettier, whiter teeth you envy in others. This offers you free a 10-day tube of the way authorities advice combating it. Simply mail the coupon.

The great enemy of teeth. Film is the great enemy of tooth beauty. And a chief cause, according to world's dental authorities, of most tooth troubles. It clings to teeth, gets into crevices and stays. Germs by the millions breed in it. They, with tartar, are the common cause of pyorrhea.

You can't have prettier, whiter teeth; you can't have healthier teeth unless you combat that film.

FRENCH WAR MONUMENT INCLUDES AMERICAN FIGURE

Features of U. S. Soldier Modeled After Quentin Roosevelt, Killed During Fighting.

By the Associated Press. PARIS, Sept. 22.—"My countryman will be deeply touched that one of the soldiers crowning this monument is an American and that the sculptor chose as his model a man whose name is most honored in our hearts," said Sheldon Whitehouse, Charge d'Affaires of the United States Embassy, at the unveiling Sunday of a monument on the spot where once stood the famous Navarin farm house.

"There could be no better proof for posterity of the strength of Franco-American friendship," Whitehouse added, "than the inscription on this monument regarding the American divisions which fought with their French comrades-in-arms under command of that gallant soldier, Gen. Gouraud, for it shows our willingness to die for the same ideal."

The monument consists of the figures of three soldiers 15 feet high, one a scout, one a grenade thrower and the other a machine gun man, the last having the features of Quentin Roosevelt. Each man is depicted in action.

The monument is on a 60-foot pedestal of rose granite, visible for many miles, the war devastation having left not one tree to shut off the view.

Gen. Gouraud recounted the history of the battles that had been fought near the shaft.

MEDITATIONS —OF A— MARRIED WOMAN By HELEN ROWLAND

THE LUCKY SEX.

ALAS, summer never lasts long enough for a man to learn how to sit down without wrecking his white trousers.

Nowadays, a "devoted couple" means merely a couple who don't get on each other's nerves; a man devoted to golf, and a woman devoted to bridge.

This is the time of year when the sand-sheik stops burbling about being "elemental and primitive" and all that sort of thing, and begins talking about "giving you up," and getting back to hard work.

Nothing looks quite so GOOD to a man as his wife, after he has been snubbed, fooled, or laughed at by another woman.

It takes a strong man, very much in love, to write half as many letters as a weak woman who is just a little bit in love.

Apparently the modern feels about choosing a wife as he does about choosing a car or an overcoat; why select the solid substantial kind to last a lifetime, when he may want a different model next year?

Love is, to the philosopher, a folly; to the psychologist, a formula; to the fanatic, a danger; to the flirt, a game; and to the lover, the simplest, most natural and most necessary thing in the world.

According to the bachelor, the path of true love never runs smooth; but the scenery is lovely and fascinating, so long as you can avoid skidding in matrimony.

It's all right for a man to go in for golf, but why does he have to go in for it all over the house, the front piazza and his wife's geraniums and tender feelings?

A man's love-making, in these days, is not personal, but just the involuntary outpouring of an overcrowded heart.

Farmer Brown's Boy Makes a Good Guess

Always two and two make four;
Nothing less and nothing more.

—Farmer Brown's Boy.

"WELL, well, well!" exclaimed Farmer Brown's Boy. "What under the sun has upset Black Pussy? She certainly is a scared cat. Whatever it is that scared her is underneath the back porch. She came out of that hole under the porch as if she were frightened half to death."

He walked over to the tree up which Black Pussy had climbed and talked to her. "What is it, Black Pussy?" said he. "Come down here and tell me about it. What is your tail so big for? What did you find under that back porch?"

But Black Pussy didn't even look down at Farmer Brown's Boy. She continued to glare over at that hole under the porch, the hole which she had always regarded as her very own. The hair on her tail continued to stand on end. It was plain to see that Black Pussy was both scared and angry.

Farmer Brown's Boy walked over to the back porch. He got down on his hands and knees and looked under. It was dark under there and he could see nothing. He got a long stick and poked around underneath. But he didn't find out anything that way. At first the only thing he could think of was a Snake. It might be that Black Pussy had found a big Snake under there. Then all in a flash it came to him.

"It's Uncle Billy Possum!" he exclaimed. "I just feel it in my bones. I wondered how the old rascal disappeared so suddenly last night. It is clear enough now. He saw that hole under the back porch and in he went. Probably he found it so comfortable under there he decided to spend the night there. I'll see what

But Black Pussy didn't even look down at Farmer Brown's Boy. Bowser says about it.

He went over to Bowser's little house and unchained Bowser. With Bowser at his heels, he returned to the back porch. He bent over and pointed to the hole. "See if there is anybody in there, Bowser," he commanded. Bowser understood what was wanted. He put his wonderful nose down to that hole under the porch and sniffed. His tail began to wag with excitement. He looked up at his master and whined. Then he put his nose down and took a longer sniff. Then he began to dig, and it was clear that he was excited.

Farmer Brown's Boy chuckled. "Stop it, Bowser!" he commanded. "You've told me I need to know. Some one is under there, and I haven't the least doubt that that some one is Uncle Billy Possum."

He took hold of Bowser's collar and dragged him away. Bowser didn't want to go. He tugged and tugged, trying to get back to that hole. But Farmer Brown's Boy led him back to his little house and chained him up. Then he went over to the hen house and got a couple of fresh eggs. They put just inside the hole under the porch. Then he went about morning work, whistling.

Later in the forenoon he went over to see if those eggs were still where he had put them. They were gone. "I thought so!" exclaimed Farmer Brown's Boy. It is Uncle Billy. I wonder how I can catch the old rascal."

The Netherlands Parliament has seven women members, of which three are lawyers and one a nerve specialist.

Louisiana has just decided to accept the provisions of the Federal maternity and infancy act, bringing the total of State co-operating with the national Government in work for mothers and babies to 41.

As a mark of gratitude for her medical services, Dr. Regina F. Keyes, who has been for four years the only American practicing physician in Apia, in British Samoa, has received the royal title of "Samalulu" and has been made a member of the royal family.

Armstrong's Linoleum for Every Floor in the House

An Interior Decorator Chose This Linoleum Floor for Her Own Dining Room

THIS sketch was made from a photograph of the dining-room of a prominent New York interior decorator.

She chose this black and cream inlaid tile pattern of Armstrong's Linoleum for her home because the linoleum was pretty.

Like thousands of other women who buy linoleum every day, this decorator knew that a linoleum floor was economical; she knew that it was easy to clean; she knew that it was durable.

Most women know all these things about linoleum floors. They are discovering an even more interesting thing—that a floor of modern linoleum is beautiful.

Architects are showing them that this is so. Decorators are demonstrating it again and again. Merchants are proving it.

Linoleum looks its best underfoot—as a floor

A roll of linoleum standing in a store does not always give a clear idea of how that same linoleum will look on the floor of your home.

But when one of the modern designs of Armstrong's Linoleum has been chosen for a definite room in your house—when a trained linoleum layer has cemented that linoleum floor in place—smooth, watertight, and unbroken by unsightly seams—when that linoleum floor has been thoroughly waxed, the furniture replaced, perhaps a fabric rug laid upon it—

Then you do see that it is indeed a beautiful floor.

The modern way to lay linoleum

When a floor of linoleum is to be laid, the better stores will recommend "cementing over felt." This means that a lining of builders' deadening felt is first pasted to the bare wood floor. The linoleum is then pasted to this felt and extended beneath the moulding around the walls. When the wood floor expands or contracts in changing weather, the felt lining prevents this from affecting the linoleum. In winter the room is warmer.

Waxing and polishing

The easy way to keep a linoleum floor good-looking is to wax it. Rub the wax in thoroughly and polish with a weighted brush. Rewax once or twice a year, and on cleaning day restore the walked-on places with a cloth moistened in liquid wax. Scrubbing linoleum is unnecessary. Strong soaps or scouring powders are harmful. Waxing is the right way.

Write our Bureau of Interior Decoration

This Bureau, in charge of Mrs. Hazel Dell Brown, an experienced decorator, will help you to plan color schemes for new homes or particular rooms. Mrs. Brown will send you suggestions of linoleum designs, and tell you how to take care of your linoleum floors. We will send you a sample of Armstrong's Jaspé Linoleum, a 24-page booklet, "New Floors for Old," and direct you to good stores near you that do good laying, and can supply Armstrong's Linoleum in the new decorative designs. This help is free.
